Pool hall's parking contribution lowered

by KURT BAER

The prospective developer of a restaurant and lounge in the old pool hall building, 1 N. Vail Ave., should contribute $25,000 to the village's parking fund, the zoning board recommended Monday night.

The $25,000 would compensate for the proposed restaurant's complete lack of private off-street parking for customers and employes.

The zoning board reduced the recommended contribution to $25,000 from $73,600 dictated by the strict terms of the village's parking ordinance. Board members said they wanted to encourage the renovation of the abandoned pool hall building.

Arlington Heights' parking ordinance requires a contribution of $1,600 per space in lieu of off-street parking with the total number of spaces calculated as one space for every 50 square feet of restaurant seating area.

ROBERT KARTON, attorney for the prospective developers, said his clients would consider the $25,000 recommendation and await a final decision from the Arlington Heights Village Board. Karton earlier said a $15,000 contribution would be acceptable.

Owners of three downtown restaurants — Countryside, Dunton House and Bella Inn — objected to reducing the parking contribution. A lack of parking spaces is the single biggest problem downtown, they said.

Karton said that a survey of shopper parking lot between Dunton and Vail Avenues south of Campbell street last week showed that it was rarely more than one-third filled.

In addition to the parking compensation required by the present ordinance, the restaurant developers anticipate and would support a future assessment on all downtown businesses to build a village parking garage, Karton said.

A special village committee is now studying the feasibility of a municipal garage.

Karton said that the three partners he represents will pay $81,500 to buy the 82-year-old building, and will spend another $250,000 remodeling and equipping the structure as a restaurant and cocktail lounge.

THEY CANNOT AFFORD to add $73,600 parking contribution to the cost of the project, he said.

The zoning board recommended that the $25,000 be paid in 10 annual installments, with the first and last payments paid at the outset as a form of downpayment. The balance of the contribution would carry a 6 per cent yearly interest, the board recommended.

Two years ago, the village board approved a $25,000 contribution in connection with a smaller restaurant plan for the old pool hall. The project was subsequently dropped because the developer said the $25,000 donation made the plan too costly.

Pioneer fieldhouse hit second time by vandals

BY JOE SWICKARD

Pioneer Park Fieldhouse was the scene of a window-breaking spree for the second straight weekend.

Angelo Capulli, superintendent of parks for the Arlington Heights Park District, said the latest damage totaled $1,500. A week ago, more than $700 in damage was done to the fieldhouse at 500 S. Fernandez Ave., he said.

Expensive thermopane and plate glass windows were smashed in both instances, he said.

RETALIATION FOR disciplinary measures was the motive in both attacks, Capulli said.

"Most of them were broken in retaliation," he said. "People apparently are getting back at park personnel who try to keep order or have to call police in on some problem."

Preventive measures after the first incident did not deter the vandals, he said.

"At first, the windows were broken with rocks and stones from around the park, so we cleared those out of the way. Sunday night, they took the steel caps off the fence posts and threw them through the windows," Capulli said.

The recent incidents at Pioneer, and to a lesser degree Hasbrook Park, are

Woman's coma must continue

'Don't pull the plug,' judge rules

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — The parents of Karen Ann Quinlan cannot pull the plug on her respirator and let her die, New Jersey Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. ruled Monday.

Only Karen's doctors may decide whether there is any reason to keep using the respirator, even though Karen's brain has been virtually destroyed by nearly seven months in a coma," Muir said.

"The single most important temporal quality Karen Ann Quinlan has is life," Muir said in his 44-page opinion. "This court will not authorize that life to be taken from her."

IN REJECTING the parents' plea that 21-year-old Karen be allowed to "die with dignity" rather than linger on, the judge agreed with state attorneys that pulling the plug would be "homicide" under New Jersey law.

Judge Robert Muir Jr.

Karen Quinlan

"Humanitarian motives cannot justify the taking of a human life," Muir wrote. "The fact that the victim is on the threshhold of death or in terminal condition is no defense to a homicide charge."

Muir said he was issuing the decision "with prejudice," which means that the Quinlans may not replead the case in Superior Court on different grounds. They may, however, appeal his decision to a higher court — a course of action the parents of the comatose woman have not yet decided on.

In a news conference, Karen's mother, Julia, said, "We haven't decided whether to appeal. We want to sit down with our two children and discuss this.

Karen's father, Joseph T. Quinlan, 53, said, "As I said before, I have been praying for the judge to make the right decision. I am sure that the judge made the decision he thought was right."

HE ADDED: "We're still praying for God's will. Somehow God showed his will to the judge."

State Atty. Gen. William F. Hyland called Muir's ruiling "predictable" and "in the public interest."

The Quinlans received Muir's decision in the privacy of his chambers in the Morris County Courthouse here, where the judge heard their plea — unprecedented in American history —

Veterans Day, round two; schools, some offices shut

The second round of Veterans Day closing will be in effect today, with the traditional observance of the World War I armistice and recognition of veterans from all American wars.

Offices of the state and Cook County will be closed today while federal offices, including the postal service, will remain open.

Schools will be closed for the state holiday.

Most local municipal offices will be open today, as will most libraries and park districts.

Palatine, Des Plaines and Wheeling municipal offices will be closed, as will the Schaumburg Park District.

The Palatine Park District will be closed, but Birchwood Park fieldhouse will be open from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. for open gym activities. The Salt Creek Park District will not have preschool programs, but the parks are open.

Veterans of Foreign Wars posts are planning services in Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village today.

Arlington Heights post 981 will hold services at 10:45 a.m. at the village flag pole on Railroad Avenue between Dunton Street and Evergreen Avenue.

Elk Grove Village Post 9284 will have ceremonies at post headquarters, 400 E. Devon Ave., at 10:30 a.m. A dinner and show for 40 patients from Hines Veterans Hospital will be held tonight at the post.

Teachers picket Dist. 63 board

More than 300 teachers in East Maine Dist. 63 picketed the school board Monday night, urging board members to reach a satisfactory contract settlement and avert a teachers' strike. Teachers will strike Wednesday if a contract settlement is not reached during negotiations today. Teachers marched in front of Apollo Junior High School in Maine Township Monday chanting "Gogo says we are the best. He pays us less than all the rest," while the board met in a closed session to discuss negotiations. The chant referred to Supt. G. Allan Gogo and that Dist. 63 teachers have a lower base salary, $8,734, than neighboring districts. If a strike occurs Wednesday, the board will attempt to keep schools open.

Apartment fire injures woman

A Buffalo Grove woman is in fair condition at Northwest Community Hospital with first and second degree burns following a fire in her apartment at the Sandpiper apartment complex, Dundee Road just west of Arlington Heights Road. Sandra W. Windell, 33, suffered burns on the face and neck when a fire broke out in the bedroom of her apartment. About 20 residents were routed from the building when neighbors knocked on their doors alerting them to the blaze. A fire alarm in the building failed to sound because someone had jammed the alarm bells with paper, Assistant Fire Chief William Dettmer said. The alarm sounded at the fire station and the blaze was extinguished within 15 minutes. Damage estimates were not available.

'Young' man to assist elderly

Steve Young of Hoffman Estates wants to make Old Man Winter easier to cope with for senior citizens and handicapped people in the village. Young, 26, will offer free snowplowing to the elderly and handicapped from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. when the weather warrants. Young, who has worked for a snowplowing and landscaping service for a year, will underwrite the costs of his free service through his regular paying accounts. Young said he may extend the program to other area communities if the service is successful in Hoffman Estates.

Vandals again damage fieldhouse

Pioneer Park Fieldhouse in Arlington Heights was hit by vandals for the second straight weekend. About $1,500 in thermopane and plate glass windows were broken this weekend when vandals took steel caps from fence posts in the park and threw them through the windows. Last weekend, more than $700 damage was done when vandals threw rocks and stones through windows. Park officials said they thought the windows were broken by people "getting back at park personnel who try to keep order or have to call police in on some problems."

A prewinter wind dropped temperatures to 55 degrees Monday and warned of coming cold-weather months.

Power disrupted in many areas

75 m.p.h. winds batter suburbs

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wind gusts of up to 75 miles per hour belted northern Illinois, disrupted power in most Northwest suburbs and dumped rain on scattered areas late Sunday and early Monday.

The storm knocked down trees and power lines and caused scattered electrical failures in Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates. "We had trouble all over," a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison said Monday.

"Major" electrical failure was reported in Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Elk Grove. A wire collapse cut power to 2,500 to 3,000 residents of western Des Plaines and parts of Mount Prospect about 5 a.m., the spokesman said. Power returned about 8 a.m.

In Elk Grove, 300 industrial plants lost power about 9:30 a.m. High winds "shorted" a Commonwealth Edison transformer; power was restored about 10:10 a.m.

TORNADOES WERE reported in Fox Lake, Grayslake, Gurney, Paxton and Buda. Minor damage was reported. No injuries were reported.

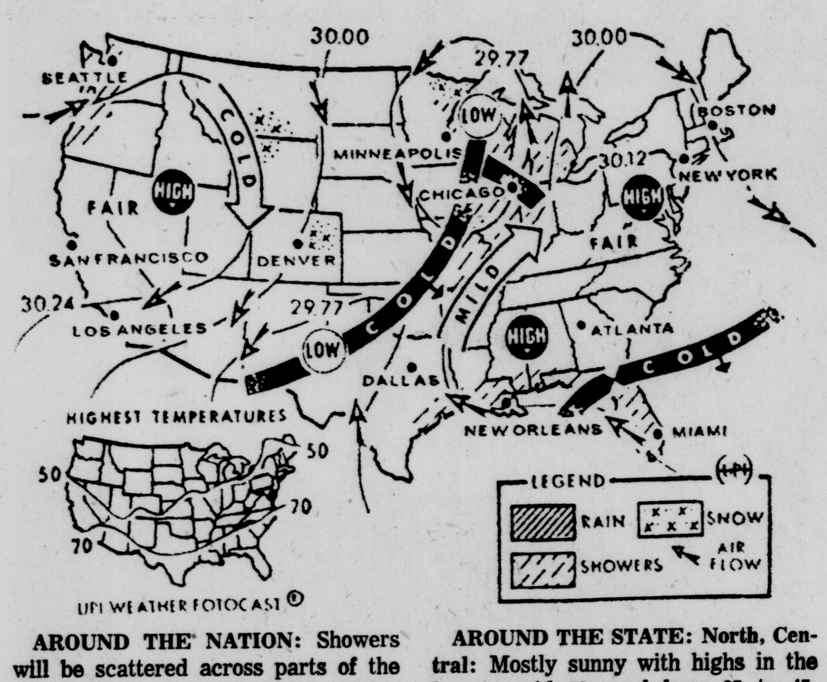
The death of a Hoffman Estates truck driver was blamed on the storm which dumped as much as a half inch of rain on some parts of Chicago. Police said Ambrose Bentele, 30, of 136 N. Woodlawn, Hoffman Estates, died when his United Parcel Service semi-trailer overturned on the Edens Expressway. Police said the truck hit a puddle and Bentele apparently lost control of the vehicle.

The accident closed south-bound lanes for two hours as emergency crews cleared the wreckage and rushed Bentele to Skokie Valley Community Hospital. He died about 7 a.m., about 5 hours after his truck crashed into a guardrail.

The severe weather was caused by a low-pressure area in the Plains states, the weather service said. Temperatures dropped from 70 degrees at 9 p.m. Sunday to as low as 44 degrees early Monday.

Temperatures Monday reached 55 degrees, about 4 degrees above normal. The weather service predicted a high of 50 for today, with sunny skies and diminishing winds.

'Summer' on way out...



AROUND THE NATION: Showers will be scattered across parts of the north Pacific coast, the Lakes region and along the Gulf coastal states today. Some snow may be found over sections of the Rockies and Upper Mississippi valley. Generally fair weather should prevail elsewhere.

Hypertension testing extended

The free Hypertension Screening Program at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge will be extended to include Saturdays, starting Monday.

Screening will be done from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturdays and will continue Monday through Thursdays from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

"We believe offering the program on Saturday will make it easier for more people to take advantage of the service," said Dr. Margaret Bischel, director of medical education at Lutheran General.

More than 1,200 people have been screened for high blood pressure since the program began in July. Forty-seven of those were found to have hypertension. No appointment for a test is necessary.

Theater group meet set

Village Theatre will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Green Barrel Room underneath Olympic Pool, 660 N. Ridge, Arlington Heights. Entertainment will include the film "Rowland Taylor," produced by Ned Cordrey. Anyone may come. Additional information about the community theater group is available through 259-3200.

SATELLITE PHOTO taken at 11 a.m. Monday shows heavy overcast cloudiness from New England but thins to low and high clouds as the band continues to the central and eastern Gulf coast. Other areas of thick, layered clouds are over portions of the Pacific Northwest and the Northern Rockies. High, thin clouds are over the Central Rockies, low clouds over the Great Lakes and thunderstorms in the Gulf of Mexico.

Hypertension testing extended

The free Hypertension Screening Program at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge will be extended to include Saturdays, starting Monday.

Screening will be done from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturdays and will continue Monday through Thursdays from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

"We believe offering the program on Saturday will make it easier for more people to take advantage of the service," said Dr. Margaret Bischel, director of medical education at Lutheran General.

More than 1,200 people have been screened for high blood pressure since the program began in July. Forty-seven of those were found to have hypertension. No appointment for a test is necessary.

Ford salutes Marines

Leathernecks...'a living monument to bravery, self-sacrifice'

President Ford, flanked by saluting Marines, marks the force's 200th birthday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, saying America "will be put to many tests around the world," saluted the Marine Corps on its 200th birthday Monday before a statue depicting one of the Corps' toughest tests — the raising of the flag on Iwo Jima.

"The United States must be constant and credible when we speak of American strength at home and on the seas of the world," Ford said.

Iwo Jima is a 7.8-square-mile Pacific Ocean island on which 4,590 Americans and 20,000 Japanese were killed during World War II.

Among those present was one of the two surviving men depicted raising the flag, Rene A. Gagnon of Manchester, N.H.

Ford placed a wreath of yellow mums at the base of the statue. Taps, the Marine Hymn and "America" were played.

Ford said the U.S. Marine Corps "has become a living monument to bravery and self-sacrifice. . .I do not know what events the next two centuries will bring to our country. But I do know this: It is for us, the living, to raise new monuments — new hopes and new courage, new ideas and new ideals for our children and their children. We must leave a heritage worthy of our inheritance."

U.N. votes Zionism a form of racism

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United Nations Monday night voted approval of a resolution calling Zionism a form of racism. The United States immediately branded the resolution a "lie."

Despite strong opposition by the United States and other western powers, the U. N. General Assembly approved the resolution 72-35 with 32 abstentions and three nations absent.

"We the Jewish people, will not forget," Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog told the Assembly after the vote.

U. S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan condemned the vote as "an infamous act" and said that "to declare that Zionism is a form of racism . . . is a lie, which the United Nations has now declared to be a truth."

Before the vote, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger had denounced the proposal as "bloc voting and one-way morality" and warned it has "weakened public support for the United Nations in the United States."

The decision confirmed the General Assembly's Social Committee vote for the Arab-promoted resolution saying that the United Nations "determines that Zionism is a form of racism and of racial discrimination." That had passed the Social Committee on Oct. 17 by a vote of 70-29 with 27 abstentions.

Zionism is defined as a movement to form a nation and/or religious community in what was formerly Palestine. Most Arab nations still do not recognize the Republic of Israel and consider it Palestine, the area's name before May of 1948 when Israel declared itself a nation.

Earlier in the day, the General Assembly overwhelmingly approved two resolutions asserting "inalienable rights" for the Palestine Liberation Organization and demanding a seat for it in all Middle East peace talks.

The result was a solid defeat for the United States and Israel and a resounding victory for the PLO.

The world body first approved, 101-8 with 25 abstentions, a resolution creating a 20-nation committee to work out a program for attaining the Palestinians' rights to self-determination as a nation and to return to property from which they were uprooted in four Middle East wars.

The resolution calls for the committee to make a report for Security Council action by next June 1.

Then the Assembly, by a 93-18 vote with 27 abstentions, approved a second measure also calling for guarantees of the "inalienable rights" of the Palestinians and for "the invitation of the Palestine Liberation Organization, the representative of the Palestine people, to participate in all efforts, deliberations and conferences on the Middle East, which are held under the auspices of the United Nations, on an equal footing for other parties."

After the Assembly dealt the twin setbacks to the United States and Israel by approving two pro-PLO resolutions, Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog promptly announced his government would ignore them.

"I can only repeat that my country will not, under any circumstances, sit down and negotiate with the representative of a body which, in principle, rejects compromise as a basis of solving international problems and which avowedly sees as the only solution of the Middle East problem the destruction of Israel," Herzog told the Assembly.

Lost ship hunted on Lake Superior

The Coast Guard launched a search late Monday for a 729-foot Great Lakes ship carrying 30-35 persons and reported missing on windswept Lake Superior. A Coast Guard spokesman said the Edmund Fitzgerald was last seen at 7:10 p.m. by a trailing vessel. Attempts to raise the ship by radio have failed and the trailing vessel lost radar contact, the spokesman said.

Illegal campaign fund list expanded

A former Gulf Oil official has acknowledged making allegedly illegal campaign contributions to at least 15 senators and congressmen. Gulf was convicted in 1973 of making illegal contributions to the 1972 presidential campagn of Richard M. Nixon. But UPI learned the list of alleged recipients has been expanded to at least nine present and former senators including presidential hopeful Fred Harris, six present and former representatives, former Kansas Gov. William Avery and Pennsylvania's "Mr. Republican" George Bloom.

Senate ratifies missile defense treaty

The Senate Monday ratified a treaty negotiated by President Richard M. Nixon in Moscow in 1974 — immediately before his resignation — limiting the United States and Soviet Union to a single anti-ballistic missile defense site. The Senate approved the accord by a vote of 65 to 15, easily obtaining the required two-thirds majority of those present and voting.

Sahara marchers stream back home

Thousands of Moroccan volunteers who poured cheering into the Spanish Sahara last week on a "march of conquest" streamed glumly back across the border Monday under orders from King Hassan II. A few marchers tried to move on the Spanish defense lines but were turned back. Hassan, threatened with war by Spain and Algeria, called off the march Sunday in a dramatic radio-television speech.

'Squeaky' to watch her trial on TV

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette Fromme, blindfolded and carried into the courthouse by a federal marshal, Monday refused to participate further in her trial on a charge of attempting to murder President Ford.

She chose to watch the proceedings on closed-circuit television in a holding cell.

Miss Fromme, ejected from the courtroom on Friday for disruptive behavior, crossed her manacled arms on her chest and was picked up from a jail van and carried into the building wearing a red blindfold for the start of the second week of her trial.

In court, the 27-year-old apostle of imprisoned mass murderer Charles Manson was given a second chance to behave properly by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride. But she opted for a downstairs cell.

During a low-key exchange with MacBride, the diminitive redhead, who had doffed her voluntary blindfold, paused carefully before answering his questions.

Asked whether she would sit quietly during the remainder of the trial if allowed to return, Miss Fromme avoided a direct answer and replied, "Well, I have to stay in the cell." She said she would boycott the proceedings "as a matter of principle."

Miss Fromme was ordered banned from the courtroom last Friday when her efforts to subpoena Manson as a witness failed. She also said she wanted a new trial for Manson, convicted of the Tate-LaBianca murders in 1969.

She is accused of attempting to assassinate President Ford with a loaded .45-caliber pistol as he greeted well-wishers in state Capitol Park en route to a speech to the legislature Sept. 5.

Miss Fromme insisted that only she and not attorney John E. Virga could put on her defense.

"Your honor, I do want to go to trial," she said. "I do want to put on a defense. This is not a frivolous disruption."

Federal judge enters innocent plea for Patty

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Over objections from Patricia Hearst's attorneys, a federal judge Monday entered an innocent plea for the newspaper heiress to charges she robbed a San Francisco bank and ordered her trial to begin on Dec. 15.

The trial date is the same as that previously set for the trial of Sara Jane Moore, accused of the attempted assassination of president Ford in San Francisco.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter entered the plea for Miss Hearst after her attorney, Albert Johnson, refused to let her plead, contending she was not mentally competent in spite of the judge's ruling last Friday to the contrary.

Carter said the trial date would not be binding if the defense brings in "convincing proof along the way that she is not competent."

During the hearing, Miss Hearst sat quietly, occasionally talking to her defense attorneys but not acknowledging the presence of members of her family.

Carter said a newly created provision of the federal Speedy Trial Act requiring defendants to begin their trials within 90 days after arrest presents "a most difficult area of interpretation, and it is obvious that decisions are open to appeal."

Carter also entered an innocent plea to a second charge against Miss Hearst, that she used a firearm to commit a felony during the bank robbery.

Johnson urged the court to make public the reports of three court-appointed psychiatrists and a psychologist, since in the defense's opinion the judge had "distorted" them and made public excerpts from them.

Carter denied Johnson's motion, and set Nov. 20 for a hearing on the defense contentions that Miss Hearst is still mentally incompetent. The defense said in the meantime it would ask on that date the right to cross-examine the psychiatrists.

Report Chile invasion plan foiled

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — The Chilean government said Monday that it had detected and frustrated an invasion of Chile by more than 1,200 guerrillas from Cuba and Argentina.

Reports by the Chilean secret police, known as DINA, said that the invasion was to have been carried out on Nov. 15 by 40 guerrillas trained in Cuba and 1,200 more from Argentina.

The government said 14 persons had been arrested in connection with the invasion, code named "Boomerang 1-2."

According to DINA, 40 persons, all identified, arrived in Panama from Cuba on flight 466 of the Cubana airlines. Four of them continued on to Lima on flight 977 of Braniff Airlines "to proceed to infiltrate Chile" from Peru.

The secret police said that security services had also discovered that 1,200 guerrillas were also preparing to infiltrate Chile from the southern Argentine resort city of San Carlos de Bariloche.

The guerrillas "were to have used different means of transport, especially on horseback," to cross numerous Andes Mountain passes in that region, DINA said.

The guerrillas were to have carried out attacks against top military authorities, including Gen. Augusto Pinochet, president of the governing junta, the DINA reports said.

The 1,200 guerrillas from Argentina included members of that country's People's Revolutionary Army, the DINA said.

Doctors, lawyers, clergy divided on 'pulling plug'

by United Press International

Dr. Julius Korein called the decision "really sad," but Rev. Bill Smith, a theologian speaking for the Archdiocese of New York, said it was "a good decision, respecting the medical judgment of the men on the scene."

The disagreement reflected general reaction to the ruling by New Jersey Robert Muir Jr. that Karen Ann Quinlan's parents may not unplug a respirator keeping alive their 21-year-old daughter who has been in a coma for more than six months beyond the help of physicians to treat her damaged brain.

Interviews around the country with doctors, lawyers and clergymen show sharp differences of opinion remain over whether the court should have granted the Quinlans' wish to let their daughter die, as the parents put it, "with grace and dignity."

Some, like Smith, a professor of moral theology at St. Joseph's Seminary, Yonkers, N.Y., thought a ruling in the Quinlans' favor would have established "a dangerous legal precedent."

BUT KOREIN, a prominent neurologist at New York University Medical School and the only one of six neurologists at the trial who testified for the Quinlans, asked, "Is Karen Quinlan alive."

Korein said an individual "has a set of characteristics — personality, purposeful behavior and thinking, among others" — and he said medical evidence showed Miss Quinlan lacked these characteristics.

"The maintenance of a body in a vegetative state by extraordinary means is not equivalent to maintaining life . . . She is not a person any more."

Smith disagreed. "There's no question that the girl is alive," Smith said. He said terms such as "vegetative state," "vegetable," and absence of "meaningful life," which were used during the trial to describe Karen's condition, "are so vague that they are not helpful and so vague as to be dangerous."

Other reactions:

Dr. Milton Seifitz, author of the book, "Right to Die," said the ruling was an affront to Karen's civil rights and will "prolong debased dying" in New Jersey. He said "Doctors are treating her without the consent of her parents or her consent. It could be considered assault and battery."

Dr. Max Parrott, president of the American Medical Assn. said, "We support Judge Muir's decision in this difficult case. While the judge denied the Quinlan family's request to withdraw the life supporting mechanisms, he recognized that such decisions are essentially medical rather than legal, and therefore the care and treatment of a patient and all decisions related thereto remain the responsibility of the treating physician."

Stephen M. Nagler, head of the New Jersey chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union said Muir "should have granted the request" because "there is no chance that Karen will be restored in meaningful consciousness." He admitted that if the judge had ruled otherwise, the precedent could have become troublesome.

Rabbi David B. Hollander, president of the Rabbinical Alliance of America, representing Orthodox Jewry, said Muir's ruling that the decision is essentially a medical decision "does not sit well with us" because "we do not believe that medical doctors have any right to decide whether or not to pull the plug; everything humanly possible should be to keep a person alive until that person is absolutely, unequivocally dead. When it comes to sanctity of human life, the minute you open it up, you are opening up the gates to mass murder," the rabbi said.

RICHARD SEEBURGER, professor of law at the University of Pittsburgh Law School said the decision is "awful if this is a license for doctors to go around and force services on people and bill them for it. They've got enough money."

In St. Louis, Gary Debro, whose wife, Judith Ann Debro, died Sunday while a court was considering his suit to remove life-sustaining devices from her, said he intends to pursue his suit "so that we get a ruling that, if taken all the way to the Supreme Court, will have a uniform verdict on this matter for all 50 states."

Chaplain Augustus Verdery, director of pastoral services at Georgia Baptist Hospital in Atlanta, said the decision "will have a horrible impact" on doctors and hospitals in treating the terminally ill. Because "there are not enough machines to keep all these people living artifically . . . The hospitalis would be filled with nobody but people on machines."

Dr. Arthur Richardson, dean of the medical school at Atlanta's Emory University, said the ruling "leaves the situation just where it is now — undecided. It doesn't face up to the question at all. I was afraid this would happen."

DR. RICHARD Frey, chairman of the Minnesota State Medical Association Council said most Minnesota would feel "that it is equally immoral to use mechanical support measures when it is clearly shown there is no reasonable chance for continued life without these support measures."

Dr. G. R. Diessner, a physician at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and president of the Minnesota Medical Assn. criticized what he felt was the emotionalism and sensationalism of the Quinlan case.

Comatose woman's kin undecided on next step

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — The parents of Karen Ann Quinlan Monday left open the possibility they would appeal the ruling that denies them the right to end the life of their comatose daughter.

"We haven't decided whether to appeal. We have to sit down with our two children and discuss this," Karen's father, Joseph Quinlan, told a news conference.

In addition to 21-year-old Karen, whom the Quinlans adopted, they have two other children, Maryellen, 19, and John, 17.

The Quinlans met with newsmen at the County Tax Office near the Morristown, N.J., court where Judge Robert Muir Jr. denied them permission to disconnect a respirator that has kept Karen alive for almost seven months.

THE PARENTS spent more than an hour composing themselves before meeting with reporters. Just after the decision was handed down, Rev. Thomas Trapasso, the family's pastor at Our Lady of the Lake Church in Mt. Arlington, N.J., described them as "a bit shaken."

Mrs. Quinlan, wearing a green suit and, like her husband, displaying no outward emotion later at the news conference, said of the ordeal:

"I personally think this has brought me closer to God and given me a better understanding of Christianity . . "

She said the family has received more than 2,000 letters, some praying for a miracle, but the majority supporting their request to allow Karen to die.

"WE'RE STILL praying for God's will and that Karen's condition will improve," she said.

Her husband, a supervisor for a New Jersey drug firm, said that while he was disappointed with the ruling, the judge showed "a certain amount of courage in making the decision he thought was right. Somehow God showed his will to the judge," Karen's father said.

"I tried not to think about what the decision would be. I prayed I would be able to accept whatever decision the judge made," Mrs. Quinlan said.

Mrs. Quinlan said that while Morris County Public Defender Daniel R. Coburn has been appointed as Karen's guardian, she felt the family would still be consulted about her condition.

"From what I understand, the doctor-family relationship will remain the same," she said.

THE JUDGE ruled that it was in Karen's best interests that Coburn be appointed her guardian because her father's anguish would be "magnified" if he were allowed to be her guardian and was forced to make day-to-day decisions about his daughter's care.

But Quinlan said, "We'll still have the day-to-day anguish and heartbreak."

Summing up, Karen's father said, "There was no other way. We've done everything possible medically and spiritually and bringing it to the courts was the last resource we had."

Respirator must stay on, judge rules in a five-day trial two weeks ago.

Muir said he wanted to spare the Quinlans the "anguish" of dealing with the day-to-day medical decisions in Karen's future, and he appointed Daniel R. Coburn as her guardian.

Miss Quinlan lapsed into a coma last April 14 after mixing alcohol and tranquilizers. She has not regained consciousness.

During the trial, six neurologists testified that Karen's state was "vegetative," but asserted that her condition did not fit the so-called "Harvard Criterion" of brain death, under which doctors often remove patients from life-sustaining devices.

In her testimony, Mrs. Quinlan said that Karen on three occasions had asked that she not be kept alive by extraordinary means if the situation ever arose. Quinlan, meanwhile, testified simply that Karen had a right to die naturally and be taken "into the loving hands of the Lord."

After Muir issued his ruling, Morris County Prosecutor Donald G. Collester, who argued the case for the state, said, "The opinion pretty much speaks for itself. Nobody wins or loses. It is an historic opinion. There's no question about that."

Muir said that if he had based his decision on his own personal conscience, "the compassion, empathy, sympathy I feel for Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan . . . would play a very significant part in the decision."

Muir underlined the word "very" in his text.

But a decision based on emotion, he wrote, would set a "legally detrimental precedent."

Doctors, lawyers, clergy divided on 'pulling plug'

by United Press International

Dr. Julius Korein called the decision "really sad," but Rev. Bill Smith, a theologian speaking for the Archdiocese of New York, said it was "a good decision, respecting the medical judgment of the men on the scene."

The disagreement reflected general reaction to the ruling by New Jersey Robert Muir Jr. that Karen Ann Quinlan's parents may not unplug a respirator keeping alive their 21-year-old daughter who has been in a coma for more than six months beyond the help of physicians to treat her damaged brain.

Interviews around the country with doctors, lawyers and clergymen show sharp differences of opinion remain over whether the court should have granted the Quinlans' wish to let their daughter die, as the parents put it, "with grace and dignity."

Some, like Smith, a professor of moral theology at St. Joseph's Seminary, Yonkers, N.Y., thought a ruling in the Quinlans' favor would have established "a dangerous legal precedent."

BUT KOREIN, a prominent neurologist at New York University Medical School and the only one of six neurologists at the trial who testified for the Quinlans, asked, "Is Karen Quinlan alive."

Korein said an individual "has a set of characteristics — personality, purposeful behavior and thinking, among others" — and he said medical evidence showed Miss Quinlan lacked these characteristics.

"The maintenance of a body in a vegetative state by extraordinary means is not equivalent to maintaining life . . . She is not a person any more."

Smith disagreed. "There's no question that the girl is alive," Smith said. He said terms such as "vegetative state," "vegetable," and absence of "meaningful life," which were used during the trial to describe Karen's condition, "are so vague that they are not helpful and so vague as to be dangerous."

Other reactions:

Dr. Milton Seifitz, author of the book, "Right to Die," said the ruling was an affront to Karen's civil rights and will "prolong debased dying" in New Jersey. He said "Doctors are treating her without the consent of her parents or her consent. It could be considered assault and battery."

Dr. Max Parrott, president of the American Medical Assn. said, "We support Judge Muir's decision in this difficult case. While the judge denied the Quinlan family's request to withdraw the life supporting mechanisms, he recognized that such decisions are essentially medical rather than legal, and therefore the care and treatment of a patient and all decisions related thereto remain the responsibility of the treating physician."

Stephen M. Nagler, head of the New Jersey chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union said Muir "should have granted the request" because "there is no chance that Karen will be restored in meaningful consciousness." He admitted that if the judge had ruled otherwise, the precedent could have become troublesome.

Rabbi David B. Hollander, president of the Rabbinical Alliance of America, representing Orthodox Jewry, said Muir's ruling that the decision is essentially a medical decision "does not sit well with us" because "we do not believe that medical doctors have any right to decide whether or not to pull the plug; everything humanly possible should be to keep a person alive until that person is absolutely, unequivocally dead. When it comes to sanctity of human life, the minute you open it up, you are opening up the gates to mass murder," the rabbi said.

RICHARD SEEBURGER, professor of law at the University of Pittsburgh Law School said the decision is "awful if this is a license for doctors to go around and force services on people and bill them for it. They've got enough money."

In St. Louis, Gary Debro, whose wife, Judith Ann Debro, died Sunday while a court was considering his suit to remove life-sustaining devices from her, said he intends to pursue his suit "so that we get a ruling that, if taken all the way to the Supreme Court, will have a uniform verdict on this matter for all 50 states."

Chaplain Augustus Verdery, director of pastoral services at Georgia Baptist Hospital in Atlanta, said the decision "will have a horrible impact" on doctors and hospitals in treating the terminally ill. Because "there are not enough machines to keep all these people living artifically . . . The hospitalis would be filled with nobody but people on machines."

Dr. Arthur Richardson, dean of the medical school at Atlanta's Emory University, said the ruling "leaves the situation just where it is now — undecided. It doesn't face up to the question at all. I was afraid this would happen."

DR. RICHARD Frey, chairman of the Minnesota State Medical Association Council said most Minnesota would feel "that it is equally immoral to use mechanical support measures when it is clearly shown there is no reasonable chance for continued life without these support measures."

Dr. G. R. Diessner, a physician at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and president of the Minnesota Medical Assn. criticized what he felt was the emotionalism and sensationalism of the Quinlan case.

Administrator rating plan debated

A committee report detailing a new technique for evaluating school administrators was alternately criticized and praised by High School Dist. 214 Board of Education members.

The study was criticized by some members for not fulfilling its assigned purpose of evaluating a proposal to rotate administrators among the eight district schools.

The committee presented a report on a technique called "Q-sort." Board members reacted favorably to the new technique but chastized the committee for ignoring the rotation of administrators in its study.

Q-SORT IS A procedure which allows a person, through a comparison of various job functions, to determine the effectiveness of his own role.

Administrators would evaluate their jobs and those of other administrators with the intent of discussing what is being accomplished and what is not.

Board member Jack Matthews said the committee had originally been formed to study the value of rotating administrators like principals among various district schools to generate new ideas. He said the report did not direct itself to this objective.

Board member John Costello said Q-sort is "a very intriguing concept for job discussions and coming to an understanding of what is going right and what isn't. We are reasonably helpless to improve ourselves unless people point things out to us. I think Q-sort would be good for this but I don't think it fulfills our original purpose."

THE BOARD plans to meet with the committee, which is composed of administrators, for further consideration of the study.

The board also heard a report from the Presidents' Council, which is made up of student council presidents from each of the high schools. The report stated the council is working on a bill of student rights and responsibilities which would be presented to the board in the near future.

Council Pres. Nate Adams of Forest View High School, said the Presidents' Council goal is to establish communications among the high schools and to be a link between Supt. Edward Gilbert and Dist. 214 students.

Track development parley tonight

The Arlington Heights Village Board will hold a special meeting tonight to review long-range development plans for Arlington Park Race Track.

William Moore, attorney for Madison Square Garden Corp., owner of Arlington Park, has promised a detailed review of the plans originally presented to the plan commission at two hearings July 30 and Aug. 5.

Madison Square Gardens is seeking village board approval of its plan to develop the race track property with 47 acres of industrial buildings, 30 acres of office buildings and 148 acres of condominium apartments.

IT IS ALSO asking for a special-use permit that would allow the construction of a 76,000-seat football stadium at the track.

The special-use permit was recommended for approval by a 6-4 vote of the plan commission.

The plan commission forwarded no recommendation on the other parts of the race track plan saying that there was a lack of information on the proposed development.

A total of 2,300 condominium apartments is proposed for the southwest corner of the race track property, immediately north of the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

THERE ARE SIX, 13- to 15-story buildings, and a number of 4- to 6-story buildings in the apartment plan. Mooore has said that none of the buildings will be taller than the existing Hilton hotel.

Village Planner Joe Kesler and Planning Engineer John Best have said that the 2,300 units exceed the density limits of the village's zoning ordinance by some 1,000 units.

Only the acres actually planned for apartment buildings can be used in computing the permitted number of units, the two say.

Moore has said that none of the is entitled to count all of the 244 acres planned for development, including office and light industrial areas north of the apartment buildings.

The development plan represents a potential investment of more than $240 million, Moore said. Construction is planned over a period of 20 years or more.

The village board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Nike boundary pact review at parks tonight

The tentative accord reached between the Arlington Heights Park District and the Army involving boundaries at the former Nike base will be reviewed by the park board tonight.

In a closed-door meeting last week, the Army agreed to redraw its boundaries to accommodate the district's plans to build a golf course on the old missile installation. The Army declared as surplus a 26-acre parcel last week, the third such action in the park's continuing effort to gain control of land for recreational use.

The Army's first map of the latest surplus declaration showed a narrow connector strip between the two park district holdings. The strip was too narrow, park officials said, for a planned golf course which will double as flood control land.

A MEETING LATER in the week redrew the map to permit a golf course on the site.

The park board is expected to approve the redrawn map incorporating plans for the golf course.

Although the Army has declared the 26 acres as surplus land, it must first be offered to other federal agencies. Aides to U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., who have worked closely with the project, said they foresaw no other claims on the land.

The meeting, which is open to the public, will be at 7:30 at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

Park fieldhouse windows smashed

coming after what Capulli termed a "good summer."

"Since May, there has been about $4,000 in vandalism damage. From May through August it was slow," he said.

CAPULLI CREDITED the work of summer personnel and the counselor in the park program for keeping vandalism to a minimum. He said it appeared that the parks could have countered the trend of increased vandalism if the summer figures had carried over into autumn.

"It's sad the way it's going now. It's costing us one helluva a good buck to fix these things. The way things are now, I think parents should know what's going on after 11 o'clock in the parks," he said.

Capulli's monthly vandalism report cites eight major incidents for October. The list includes damage to lights and windows at Hasbrook, Pioneer and Camelot parks. Hasbrook Park's signs and doors were also vandalized during October, according to the report.

Enrollment report expected Nov. 20

The report on declining enrollment in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 will be presented to the board of education Nov. 20.

The report, prepared by consultants Booz, Allen and Hamilton Inc., studies the impact of dropping enrollment on Dist. 25 finances and facilities. The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at South Junior High School, 314 S. Highland, Arlington Heights.

Dist. 23 to consider OK for homes development

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education will take action Wednesday on a housing development which may add 90 students to the district and result in $105,000 in developer donations.

The Courts of Russetwood, a 105-home single-family development, is being planned by Szczesny Builders for an area north of Thomas Avenue and east of Waterman Avenue in Arlington Heights. The homes, scheduled to be completed in five years, will sell for between $80,000 and $100,000.

Board members will be asked to indicate their approval of the project plans as the developer seeks approval of its project from the village. They also will be asked to approve a proposed payment schedule for an agreed-upon developer donation to the district of $100 per home.

THE DISTRICT originally requested payment of the full $105,000 within 90 days of the start of building. But builders are asking that the district accept $3,500 upon issuance of the first building permit, with the balance payable in three installments over the next 13 months.

Board members will also review bids taken for life safety work at MacArthur Junior High School. Life safety construction is mandated by the state to bring schools in line with a general code of health and safety standards.

The work at MacArthur will include installation of non-slip finishes to shower facilities and repair of a ramp between the school's first and second additions.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Dist. 23 administration center, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights.

Formal OK of library vote slated tonight

The Arlington Heights Library Board tonight will formally approve plans for a $2 million expansion referendum to be held Feb. 28.

The referendum, if approved by the voters, will finance a building expansion, remodeling of existing facilities, new equipment purchases and expanded parking areas.

The library board has already endorsed the referendum and is expected to pass the referendum resolution required by state law at tonight's meeting.

The proposed referendum, which may mean a tax increase, will include $1.5 million for building expansion across St. James Street onto the site of the ill-fated cultural center; $46,000 for remodeling the existing library; $248,000 for new equipment; and $51,000 for the parking expansion.

Also to be included will be $131,000 for architects and engineers fees; $15,000 for legal and financing costs; and $100,000 in contengency funds.

The meeting, open to the public, will be in the library board room, 500 N. Dunton Ave.

Optimists sponsor youth program

The Arlington Heights Optimist Club will sponsor youth-in-government day Wednesday in the Village of Arlington Heights.

The event is part of the Optimist youth appreciation week.

Eight students will visit the eight departments of village government between 9 a.m. and noon. The students will come from Forest View, Arlington, Hersey and Rolling Meadows high schools.

Dist. 21 caucus first meet tonight

The general caucus of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will hold its orientation meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The caucus is an organization that seeks out and endorses candidates for the school board. Elections will be held in April 1976 to fill board seats held by Kenneth Rodeck, Stephen Greenberg and Barbara Farr.

Caucus membership is open to organizations or individuals in Dist. 21. The first general business meeting of the caucus will be held Wednesday, Nov. 19. Organizations or individuals not present at this meeting will not be eligible to vote on caucus proceedings.

Administrator rating plan debated

A committee report detailing a new technique for evaluating school administrators was alternately criticized and praised by High School Dist. 214 Board of Education members.

The study was criticized by some members for not fulfilling its assigned purpose of evaluating a proposal to rotate administrators among the eight district schools.

The committee presented a report on a technique called "Q-sort." Board members reacted favorably to the new technique but chastized the committee for ignoring the rotation of administrators in its study.

Q-SORT IS A procedure which allows a person, through a comparison of various job functions, to determine the effectiveness of his own role.

Administrators would evaluate their jobs and those of other administrators with the intent of discussing what is being accomplished and what is not.

Board member Jack Matthews said the committee had originally been formed to study the value of rotating administrators like principals among various district schools to generate new ideas. He said the report did not direct itself to this objective.

Board member John Costello said Q-sort is "a very intriguing concept for job discussions and coming to an understanding of what is going right and what isn't. We are reasonably helpless to improve ourselves unless people point things out to us. I think Q-sort would be good for this but I don't think it fulfills our original purpose."

THE BOARD plans to meet with the committee, which is composed of administrators, for further consideration of the study.

The board also heard a report from the Presidents' Council, which is made up of student council presidents from each of the high schools. The report stated the council is working on a bill of student rights and responsibilities which would be presented to the board in the near future.

Council Pres. Nate Adams of Forest View High School, said the Presidents' Council goal is to establish communications among the high schools and to be a link between Supt. Edward Gilbert and Dist. 214 students.

Track development parley tonight

The Arlington Heights Village Board will hold a special meeting tonight to review long-range development plans for Arlington Park Race Track.

William Moore, attorney for Madison Square Garden Corp., owner of Arlington Park, has promised a detailed review of the plans originally presented to the plan commission at two hearings July 30 and Aug. 5.

Madison Square Gardens is seeking village board approval of its plan to develop the race track property with 47 acres of industrial buildings, 30 acres of office buildings and 148 acres of condominium apartments.

IT IS ALSO asking for a special-use permit that would allow the construction of a 76,000-seat football stadium at the track.

The special-use permit was recommended for approval by a 6-4 vote of the plan commission.

The plan commission forwarded no recommendation on the other parts of the race track plan saying that there was a lack of information on the proposed development.

A total of 2,300 condominium apartments is proposed for the southwest corner of the race track property, immediately north of the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

THERE ARE SIX, 13- to 15-story buildings, and a number of 4- to 6-story buildings in the apartment plan. Mooore has said that none of the buildings will be taller than the existing Hilton hotel.

Village Planner Joe Kesler and Planning Engineer John Best have said that the 2,300 units exceed the density limits of the village's zoning ordinance by some 1,000 units.

Only the acres actually planned for apartment buildings can be used in computing the permitted number of units, the two say.

Moore has said that none of the is entitled to count all of the 244 acres planned for development, including office and light industrial areas north of the apartment buildings.

The development plan represents a potential investment of more than $240 million, Moore said. Construction is planned over a period of 20 years or more.

The village board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Nike boundary pact review at parks tonight

The tentative accord reached between the Arlington Heights Park District and the Army involving boundaries at the former Nike base will be reviewed by the park board tonight.

In a closed-door meeting last week, the Army agreed to redraw its boundaries to accommodate the district's plans to build a golf course on the old missile installation. The Army declared as surplus a 26-acre parcel last week, the third such action in the park's continuing effort to gain control of land for recreational use.

The Army's first map of the latest surplus declaration showed a narrow connector strip between the two park district holdings. The strip was too narrow, park officials said, for a planned golf course which will double as flood control land.

A MEETING LATER in the week redrew the map to permit a golf course on the site.

The park board is expected to approve the redrawn map incorporating plans for the golf course.

Although the Army has declared the 26 acres as surplus land, it must first be offered to other federal agencies. Aides to U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., who have worked closely with the project, said they foresaw no other claims on the land.

The meeting, which is open to the public, will be at 7:30 at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

Park fieldhouse windows smashed

coming after what Capulli termed a "good summer."

"Since May, there has been about $4,000 in vandalism damage. From May through August it was slow," he said.

CAPULLI CREDITED the work of summer personnel and the counselor in the park program for keeping vandalism to a minimum. He said it appeared that the parks could have countered the trend of increased vandalism if the summer figures had carried over into autumn.

"It's sad the way it's going now. It's costing us one helluva a good buck to fix these things. The way things are now, I think parents should know what's going on after 11 o'clock in the parks," he said.

Capulli's monthly vandalism report cites eight major incidents for October. The list includes damage to lights and windows at Hasbrook, Pioneer and Camelot parks. Hasbrook Park's signs and doors were also vandalized during October, according to the report.

Enrollment report expected Nov. 20

The report on declining enrollment in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 will be presented to the board of education Nov. 20.

The report, prepared by consultants Booz, Allen and Hamilton Inc., studies the impact of dropping enrollment on Dist. 25 finances and facilities. The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at South Junior High School, 314 S. Highland, Arlington Heights.

Dist. 23 to consider OK for homes development

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education will take action Wednesday on a housing development which may add 90 students to the district and result in $105,000 in developer donations.

The Courts of Russetwood, a 105-home single-family development, is being planned by Szczesny Builders for an area north of Thomas Avenue and east of Waterman Avenue in Arlington Heights. The homes, scheduled to be completed in five years, will sell for between $80,000 and $100,000.

Board members will be asked to indicate their approval of the project plans as the developer seeks approval of its project from the village. They also will be asked to approve a proposed payment schedule for an agreed-upon developer donation to the district of $100 per home.

THE DISTRICT originally requested payment of the full $105,000 within 90 days of the start of building. But builders are asking that the district accept $3,500 upon issuance of the first building permit, with the balance payable in three installments over the next 13 months.

Board members will also review bids taken for life safety work at MacArthur Junior High School. Life safety construction is mandated by the state to bring schools in line with a general code of health and safety standards.

The work at MacArthur will include installation of non-slip finishes to shower facilities and repair of a ramp between the school's first and second additions.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Dist. 23 administration center, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights.

Formal OK of library vote slated tonight

The Arlington Heights Library Board tonight will formally approve plans for a $2 million expansion referendum to be held Feb. 28.

The referendum, if approved by the voters, will finance a building expansion, remodeling of existing facilities, new equipment purchases and expanded parking areas.

The library board has already endorsed the referendum and is expected to pass the referendum resolution required by state law at tonight's meeting.

The proposed referendum, which may mean a tax increase, will include $1.5 million for building expansion across St. James Street onto the site of the ill-fated cultural center; $46,000 for remodeling the existing library; $248,000 for new equipment; and $51,000 for the parking expansion.

Also to be included will be $131,000 for architects and engineers fees; $15,000 for legal and financing costs; and $100,000 in contengency funds.

The meeting, open to the public, will be in the library board room, 500 N. Dunton Ave.

Optimists sponsor youth program

The Arlington Heights Optimist Club will sponsor youth-in-government day Wednesday in the Village of Arlington Heights.

The event is part of the Optimist youth appreciation week.

Eight students will visit the eight departments of village government between 9 a.m. and noon. The students will come from Forest View, Arlington, Hersey and Rolling Meadows high schools.

Dist. 21 caucus first meet tonight

The general caucus of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will hold its orientation meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The caucus is an organization that seeks out and endorses candidates for the school board. Elections will be held in April 1976 to fill board seats held by Kenneth Rodeck, Stephen Greenberg and Barbara Farr.

Caucus membership is open to organizations or individuals in Dist. 21. The first general business meeting of the caucus will be held Wednesday, Nov. 19. Organizations or individuals not present at this meeting will not be eligible to vote on caucus proceedings.

His book about nutrition

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Can you recommend a good book on the subject of human nutrition? I have had some college chemistry and biology, but am not a doctor. I am interested in finding out what foods have what nutrients in them and what combinations of meat, milk, vegetables, fruits and grains give a balanced diet. For example, will green beans and broccoli give a person all the nutrients he should get out of the vegetable group?

I have talked to two doctors lately and neither could remember a book on nutrition to recommend to me.

You can't go wrong by learning the facts about nutrition and applying them to your daily living. After all, what you eat is of vital importance to your health.

There are a lot of books that are based on fads and many of them I consider harmful, because they include a lot of statements that are not based on basic chemistry and scientific facts, but rather represent someone's uninformed opinion. The textbooks on physiology, biochemistry and medicine your doctors are familiar with are too technical for the public.

If you want to read a book that will tell you in simple terms what all your common foods contain and how the body handles food, you want to read my book "Metabolics, Putting Your Food Energy to Work," published by Harper and Row.

THIS BOOK is comprehensible as it uses simple blocks to represent the various atoms that make up your food. If you can build words with letter blocks, you can understand it. Also by giving you the actual chemical structure of your foods in simple block terms and showing you how your body processes them, you'll have a chance to deal with facts instead of fads.

There is a complete discussion on carbohydrates, fats, proteins, alcohol and how your body converts proteins to carbohydrate or to fatty acids to use them for energy rather than to build body proteins.

When you see how your body works you will understand how people get fatigue from both low blood sugar and diabetes. In both instances the cells are not getting vital glucose to provide needed body energy.

"Metabolics" also shows you where vitamins enter into the process of releasing energy from your food. Based on sound chemical facts you can appreciate why you need vitamins and why an excess of vitamins may not help you at all. You'll get a picture of your body as a system to process food to release energy.

WHEN YOU ARE through reading "Metabolics," you will be able to evaluate all those fad diets you see advertised with monotonous regularity. It explains how you lose that dramatic number of pounds when you first start on one, and why you get all of them back just as quickly when you return to normal eating. The book shows why those fad diets and excess calorie restriction can be harmful to your health.

Also "Metabolics" will give you the food lists you want for vitamins, minerals and amino acids from proteins, and show you how to plan a well-balanced, healthy diet for healthy living. And, it contains valuable information on how to sensibly control your weight, plus the reason why your muscle mass is important in making it possible for you to avoid obesity without making life miserable with a fad diet.

Sale items will also include jewelry, ceramics, macrame, paper tole, quilling, wall hanging, toys, Christmas decorations and baked goods. A token donation of 25 cents will be asked at the door with proceeds going to the paramedics.

Few months enough to turn mattress

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: In all my years of running a household, I've never known how often a mattress ought to be turned. Can you advise me what the manufacturers recommend? — Mrs. Marsh G. Vittitow

Manufacturers generally recommend turning a mattress once a month, end to end and side to side, and over, being careful not to bend in any way. I consider this advice ridiculous. A good mattress requires little care — and a cheap, poorly constructed one can't be improved no matter how lavish the care.

My thought is that they ought to be turned every few months or so. More important is not to let children jump up and down on mattresses or let them lounge on the edges. If you've got some good mattresses, just turn them when the mood strikes.

Dear Dorothy: Thanks to my two young ones and what often seems like an army of their friends on the block, I'm forever washing the slipcover of the playroom couch. Lately I've been having an awful time getting it back on. Others must have this problem. What do they do? — Virginia Hollings

Stretch it on before it's completely dry — pulling the edges and cording smooth with your fingers.

Dear Dorothy: I've got a simple way of removing labels from cooking pots. Rub grease or oil over the label, let it set for a few minutes, then rub the label off. If necessary, apply more grease. This also works on glassware. It's always a lot easier if water has not been applied first. — M. Baumgartner

Dear Dorothy: The secret of making really good scrambled eggs is to turn off the heat just before they're done. The pan will stay hot long enough to keep them beautifully fluffy. — Helen Cordier

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Where's Santa?

Although Santa made an unannounced visit to an area rooftop in Monday's Suburban Living pages, he didn't mean not to announce the site for "Pioneer Potpourri" which will be held at Arlington Heights Methodist Church Thursday. Further details about this and other bazaars will be appearing in Wednesday's Heralds.

His book about nutrition

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Can you recommend a good book on the subject of human nutrition? I have had some college chemistry and biology, but am not a doctor. I am interested in finding out what foods have what nutrients in them and what combinations of meat, milk, vegetables, fruits and grains give a balanced diet. For example, will green beans and broccoli give a person all the nutrients he should get out of the vegetable group?

I have talked to two doctors lately and neither could remember a book on nutrition to recommend to me.

You can't go wrong by learning the facts about nutrition and applying them to your daily living. After all, what you eat is of vital importance to your health.

There are a lot of books that are based on fads and many of them I consider harmful, because they include a lot of statements that are not based on basic chemistry and scientific facts, but rather represent someone's uninformed opinion. The textbooks on physiology, biochemistry and medicine your doctors are familiar with are too technical for the public.

If you want to read a book that will tell you in simple terms what all your common foods contain and how the body handles food, you want to read my book "Metabolics, Putting Your Food Energy to Work," published by Harper and Row.

THIS BOOK is comprehensible as it uses simple blocks to represent the various atoms that make up your food. If you can build words with letter blocks, you can understand it. Also by giving you the actual chemical structure of your foods in simple block terms and showing you how your body processes them, you'll have a chance to deal with facts instead of fads.

There is a complete discussion on carbohydrates, fats, proteins, alcohol and how your body converts proteins to carbohydrate or to fatty acids to use them for energy rather than to build body proteins.

When you see how your body works you will understand how people get fatigue from both low blood sugar and diabetes. In both instances the cells are not getting vital glucose to provide needed body energy.

"Metabolics" also shows you where vitamins enter into the process of releasing energy from your food. Based on sound chemical facts you can appreciate why you need vitamins and why an excess of vitamins may not help you at all. You'll get a picture of your body as a system to process food to release energy.

WHEN YOU ARE through reading "Metabolics," you will be able to evaluate all those fad diets you see advertised with monotonous regularity. It explains how you lose that dramatic number of pounds when you first start on one, and why you get all of them back just as quickly when you return to normal eating. The book shows why those fad diets and excess calorie restriction can be harmful to your health.

Also "Metabolics" will give you the food lists you want for vitamins, minerals and amino acids from proteins, and show you how to plan a well-balanced, healthy diet for healthy living. And, it contains valuable information on how to sensibly control your weight, plus the reason why your muscle mass is important in making it possible for you to avoid obesity without making life miserable with a fad diet.

FORTY AREA CRAFTSMEN will be offering handmade items Saturday at the second annual Community Craft Bazaar organized by the Ladies Auxiliary to Elk Grove VFW Post 9284. The dolls and stuffed animals Lori Carlson is admiring will be sold from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Elk Grove Veterans Club, 400 E. Devon, Elk Grove Village. Sale items will also include jewelry, ceramics, macrame, paper tole, quilling, wall hanging, toys, Christmas decorations and baked goods. A token donation of 25 cents will be asked at the door with proceeds going to the paramedics.

Few months enough to turn mattress

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: In all my years of running a household, I've never known how often a mattress ought to be turned. Can you advise me what the manufacturers recommend? — Mrs. Marsh G. Vittitow

Manufacturers generally recommend turning a mattress once a month, end to end and side to side, and over, being careful not to bend in any way. I consider this advice ridiculous. A good mattress requires little care — and a cheap, poorly constructed one can't be improved no matter how lavish the care.

My thought is that they ought to be turned every few months or so. More important is not to let children jump up and down on mattresses or let them lounge on the edges. If you've got some good mattresses, just turn them when the mood strikes.

Dear Dorothy: Thanks to my two young ones and what often seems like an army of their friends on the block, I'm forever washing the slipcover of the playroom couch. Lately I've been having an awful time getting it back on. Others must have this problem. What do they do? — Virginia Hollings

Stretch it on before it's completely dry — pulling the edges and cording smooth with your fingers.

Dear Dorothy: I've got a simple way of removing labels from cooking pots. Rub grease or oil over the label, let it set for a few minutes, then rub the label off. If necessary, apply more grease. This also works on glassware. It's always a lot easier if water has not been applied first. — M. Baumgartner

Dear Dorothy: The secret of making really good scrambled eggs is to turn off the heat just before they're done. The pan will stay hot long enough to keep them beautifully fluffy. — Helen Cordier

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Where's Santa?

Although Santa made an unannounced visit to an area rooftop in Monday's Suburban Living pages, he didn't mean not to announce the site for "Pioneer Potpourri" which will be held at Arlington Heights Methodist Church Thursday. Further details about this and other bazaars will be appearing in Wednesday's Heralds.

Planning your Bicentennial-year family trip?

Arrange accommodations to avoid disappointment

by MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI travel editor

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa. — If you are planning to take the family on a Bicentennial vacation next year, now is the time to begin arranging for accommodations.

Millions of tourists are expected to converge on the major historic sites in the East during the celebrations marking the 200th anniversary of the founding of the United States and hotel space will be tight.

So if your plans include Philadelphia, for instance, why not consider stopping over in the Pocono Mountains, the popular resort area only 80 miles away by superhighway.

The four-county region can offer extra dividends — 24,000-square-acres of mountains and valleys, lakes and waterfalls, primeval forest lands and an Ice Age field of giant red boulders, in addition to year-round sport and recreational activities.

CERTAINLY ONE of the most spectacular sights — and one of the state's major attractions — is the 45,000-acre Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area with its magnificent gorge carved through the mountains thousands of years ago by the Delaware River.

There are more than 200 family resorts, inns, motels and lodges in the Poconos in addition to scores of bungalows, campgrounds and trailer sites.

There also are about a score of hotels which cater primarily to honeymooners or young couples and offer huge heart-shaped beds and sunken Roman baths and mirrored walls and ceilings. The Poconos, in fact, is the U.S.'s No. 1 honeymoon haven.

But long before the honeymooners came, the Poconos was a favorite summer vacation spot for families from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. And it all started when Anthony Dutot built the first boarding house hotel at the Delaware Water Gap in 1857.

Most of the major resorts have special seasonal packages which include meals and use of sports and recreational facilities, such as golf, tennis, skiing and skating. There are day camps and special activities for children, too.

BICENTENNIAL packages, which would provide for bus services between the Poconos and Philadelphia, are being considered by members of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, according to executive director Robert Uguccioni. He said they hope to make the Poconos "the bedroom for bicentennial Philadelphia."

Some of the better known family resorts include Buck Hill Inn, Skytop Club, Pocono Manor Inn, Shawnee Inn, Tamiment and Mount Airy Lodge. All have a variety of accommodations and indoor and outdoor sports and recreational activities.

We stayed at Buck Hills — and checked out some of the others — during the tour of the region, with the assistance of Mrs. Diane Hannan of the tourist bureau.

The Buck Hills complex, established in the cool woodlands in 1898 as a Quaker summer retreat, is the largest all-year-round resort in the Northeast. Its 6,000-acres include Buck Hill Falls, near virgin forests, 27 holes of golf, 10 tennis courts, riding stables and bridle paths, outdoor and indoor swimming pools, three bowling greens, ski lifts, and an ice skating rink, among other attractions.

THERE ARE about 260 — modern and traditional — rooms in the rambling five-story stone older building and the adjoining newer wing. More than $2 million has been invested to modernize the entire establishment.

There's a pleasant old-fashioned dining room with high ceilings and mirrors.

Swiss-born chef Rene Mettler and his staff maintain the Inn's reputation for fine food, a coffee-shop and sundries store and an intimate cocktail lounge and bar where a three-piece combo plays at night. Meals also are served at the golf and tennis club houses.

Popular with swinging couples and singles, as well as families, is Mount Airy Lodge, which can accommodate up to 1,200 guests in about 15 buildings scattered across 1,500 acres. In addition to outdoor and indoor pools, the Lodge also boasts a man-made lake with the only sand beach imported from the Caribbean, they claim in the Poconos.

Open all year around also, Mount Airy has a new sports palace, with tennis, basketball, volley and badminton courts, skeet-and-rifle range, and a winter sports complex, among other facilities.

There are five nightclubs, with music, dancing and entertainment, including the 2,000-seat Crystal Room and the discotheque Club Suzanne.

And if you should change your mind about going to Philadelphia, New York is only about two hours away via Interstate U.S. 80. But then New York hopefully anticipates an influx of Bicentennial visitors from home and abroad so you better check first.

Amtrak opens lounge

Amtrak has opened a new $1.5 million passenger lounge and baggage facility at Chicago's Union Station, which serves nearly two million passengers a year.

Rolling Meadows pair wins trip to Washington

Planning your Bicentennial-year family trip?

Arrange accommodations to avoid disappointment

by MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI travel editor

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa. — If you are planning to take the family on a Bicentennial vacation next year, now is the time to begin arranging for accommodations.

Millions of tourists are expected to converge on the major historic sites in the East during the celebrations marking the 200th anniversary of the founding of the United States and hotel space will be tight.

So if your plans include Philadelphia, for instance, why not consider stopping over in the Pocono Mountains, the popular resort area only 80 miles away by superhighway.

The four-county region can offer extra dividends — 24,000-square-acres of mountains and valleys, lakes and waterfalls, primeval forest lands and an Ice Age field of giant red boulders, in addition to year-round sport and recreational activities.

CERTAINLY ONE of the most spectacular sights — and one of the state's major attractions — is the 45,000-acre Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area with its magnificent gorge carved through the mountains thousands of years ago by the Delaware River.

There are more than 200 family resorts, inns, motels and lodges in the Poconos in addition to scores of bungalows, campgrounds and trailer sites.

There also are about a score of hotels which cater primarily to honeymooners or young couples and offer huge heart-shaped beds and sunken Roman baths and mirrored walls and ceilings. The Poconos, in fact, is the U.S.'s No. 1 honeymoon haven.

But long before the honeymooners came, the Poconos was a favorite summer vacation spot for families from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. And it all started when Anthony Dutot built the first boarding house hotel at the Delaware Water Gap in 1857.

Most of the major resorts have special seasonal packages which include meals and use of sports and recreational facilities, such as golf, tennis, skiing and skating. There are day camps and special activities for children, too.

BICENTENNIAL packages, which would provide for bus services between the Poconos and Philadelphia, are being considered by members of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, according to executive director Robert Uguccioni. He said they hope to make the Poconos "the bedroom for bicentennial Philadelphia."

Some of the better known family resorts include Buck Hill Inn, Skytop Club, Pocono Manor Inn, Shawnee Inn, Tamiment and Mount Airy Lodge. All have a variety of accommodations and indoor and outdoor sports and recreational activities.

We stayed at Buck Hills — and checked out some of the others — during the tour of the region, with the assistance of Mrs. Diane Hannan of the tourist bureau.

The Buck Hills complex, established in the cool woodlands in 1898 as a Quaker summer retreat, is the largest all-year-round resort in the Northeast. Its 6,000-acres include Buck Hill Falls, near virgin forests, 27 holes of golf, 10 tennis courts, riding stables and bridle paths, outdoor and indoor swimming pools, three bowling greens, ski lifts, and an ice skating rink, among other attractions.

THERE ARE about 260 — modern and traditional — rooms in the rambling five-story stone older building and the adjoining newer wing. More than $2 million has been invested to modernize the entire establishment.

There's a pleasant old-fashioned dining room with high ceilings and mirrors.

Swiss-born chef Rene Mettler and his staff maintain the Inn's reputation for fine food, a coffee-shop and sundries store and an intimate cocktail lounge and bar where a three-piece combo plays at night. Meals also are served at the golf and tennis club houses.

Popular with swinging couples and singles, as well as families, is Mount Airy Lodge, which can accommodate up to 1,200 guests in about 15 buildings scattered across 1,500 acres. In addition to outdoor and indoor pools, the Lodge also boasts a man-made lake with the only sand beach imported from the Caribbean, they claim in the Poconos.

Open all year around also, Mount Airy has a new sports palace, with tennis, basketball, volley and badminton courts, skeet-and-rifle range, and a winter sports complex, among other facilities.

There are five nightclubs, with music, dancing and entertainment, including the 2,000-seat Crystal Room and the discotheque Club Suzanne.

And if you should change your mind about going to Philadelphia, New York is only about two hours away via Interstate U.S. 80. But then New York hopefully anticipates an influx of Bicentennial visitors from home and abroad so you better check first.

Amtrak opens lounge

Amtrak has opened a new $1.5 million passenger lounge and baggage facility at Chicago's Union Station, which serves nearly two million passengers a year.

Violating customs law serious matter

Some unwittingly violate rules— and ignorance isn't a good excuse

by MURRAY J. BROWN

Federal regulations require that all persons must clear through customs before entry into the United States.

Most have no problem. But there are some who unwittingly violate laws.

Ignorance of the rules and regulations is no excuse, and violations can be punishable by confiscation and destruction of prohibited or restricted items and sometimes, fines and imprisonment.

Some of the prohibited materials include narcotics and dangerous drugs, obscene articles and publications, switchblade knives, fireworks and clothing or other items fashioned from the skins or other parts of more than 400 species of wildlife listed under the Endangered Species Conservation Act of 1969.

ALSO BARRED are unlicensed merchandise originating in North Vietnam, North Korea and Cuba — and that includes Havana cigars. Articles of Chinese origin, formerly prohibited, may now be imported.

There are prohibitions and restrictions also on firearms and ammunition, fruits, vegetables, plants, meats, poultry, livestock, pets, live fish, birds and wildlife.

Recent changes in the law now permit the importation of gold without a license. Gold is duty free, but travelers bringing in bullion or gold coins for their personal use must declare them when clearing customs.

Each returning American is allowed a duty exemption of up to $100 — fair retail value — provided he brings his purchases with him, has been outside the U.S. for more than 48 hours, has not used the exemption within the previous 30-day period, and the articles are for personal or household use. Mexico and the U.S. Virgin Islands are exempt from the time limitations.

One quart of liquor per adult 21 years and older, and up to 100 cigars may be included in the exemption. There is no federal limitation on the number of cigarettes that can be imported for personal use although taxes may be imposed by state or local authorities.

THERE IS AN EXTRA $100 duty exemption, for a total of $200, for Americans returning from or via the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam or American Samoa.

Adults also can bring in a full gallon of alcoholic beverages. However, no more than $100 in goods and one quart of liquor purchased elsewhere than in the islands can be included in the duty-free exemption.

During their travels, Americans may mail home gifts of not more than $10 in value recently upped to $20 from the U.S. island possessions in the Caribbean and Pacific to friends and relatives free of duty or tax if the recipient does not receive more than one package a day. These gifts do not have to be declared. Write "Unsolicited Gift — value under $10 or $20" on the outside of the parcel. Liquor and tobacco products are not included nor are alcoholic perfumes valued at more than $1.

There is no limitation on the total of purchases you can make, but the amount imported in excess of the basic exemptions are subject to duty, unless items are entitled to free entry or barred.

If your total purchases add up to less than the duty exemption, an oral declaration generally will be accepted by the inspector. A written declaration is necessary if liquor and other purchases exceed the exemption.

INCIDENTALLY, a family traveling together can lump its exemptions. A family of four, for instance, may bring in up to $400 or $800 since children are entitled to the same exemptions as adults, except on liquor.

Everything acquired abroad must be declared — and that includes gifts and articles that may have been used during the trip. Repairs or alterations to articles taken abroad also must be declared.

To help speed clearance, keep all sales and other slips handy, and pack all purchases in the same case, if possible.

GOING THROUGH customs doesn't have to be an ordeal for travelers who know and comply with the laws restricting and prohibiting some items. The regulations are worth learning — violations can be punishable by confiscation of illegal materials and open the traveler to fines and even imprisonment.

Hotels advised: cater to persons of modest means

NEW YORK (UPI) — If the hotel and motel industry wants to keep on growing it is going to have to provide accommodations at lower prices that will persuade people of modest means to travel, said a leading hotel economist.

John Lesure of Laventhol & Horwath, the international public accounting firm, says hotels and motels face other severe challenges if the industry is to avoid serious underoccupancy and a considerable degree of stagnation.

"Hotels should make a determined effort to get many of the travelers who customarily stop at the homes of relatives or friends to stop at hotels or motels," he said.

ASKED WHAT would persuade people to pay for hotel accommodations if they could sponge off relatives or friends, Lesure promptly replied: "Ego. We should appeal to it. It's more fun to be the host than the guest most of the time and the traveler stopping at a good hotel or motel can be the host. Stopping with relatives or friends too often gives one the uneasy feeling that he or she is imposing on them."

Lesure said many hotels also should make a determined effort to recapture some of the prestige they formerly enjoyed as the social centers of their communities. "The motels have taken much of this business from downtown hotels but the motels have not achieved the social prestige once enjoyed by leading downtown hotels and I don't think they ever can," Lesure said.

But his big pitch is for both hotels and motels to work out a way to provide accommodations at prices that will enable people who do not travel now to do so. He said there are millions of persons in the United States in that class. "Typically," he said, "these people are under 25 or over 65 and have individual annual incomes of less than $5,000. There are more women than men among them."

In his annual report, Lesure said both the room occupancy rates and the profits of hotels in the United States fell last year and a 6 per cent rise in sales volume reflected only higher prices.

"THESE TRENDS have accelerated this year," Lesure said. He said inflation and high gasoline prices are the biggest cause of the business decline. He warned the industry against further rapid increase in capacity and particularly against any big increase in high priced luxury accommodations. He noted that more and more luxury motels are being built "to service a market that is increasing very slowly in size."

Lesure said urban redevelopment programs in several large cities included the construction of new hotels and predicted these hotels will have a hard time making profits under current conditions.

He said the competition is intense for conventions and meetings, which are more and more the bread and butter business of hotels and motels. Lesure admitted he did not know exactly how hotel managements should proceed to provide cheaper accommodations for people who can't afford their present prices. "A significant amount of research will have to be done before exact answers to the problem are found," he said.

United salutes the new Mother Frances Pavilion.

This Wednesday is a big day at Holy Family Hospital. It's dedication day for the all-new Mother Frances Pavilion—one of the most advanced emergency and out-patient units anywhere.

The people of United Airlines are proud to honor the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth on their fine achievement. And we wish them continued success in their work.

UNITED AIRLINES

As part of our continuing effort to provide quality medical care for families in the northwest suburban area, Holy Family is pleased to announce the formal dedication of our new Mother Frances Pavilion on November 12, 1975. Here's what this means to you and your family.

A better way to handle emergencies. Instead of an emergency "room" we have a completely modern emergency department. It's designed, equipped and staffed to provide treatment as fast as possible and in a way that respects your privacy.

Upon entering the emergency department reception area, a specially trained, registered "triage" nurse makes initial assessments of your medical need and determines priorities among patients to assure the best possible service. The triage nurse also keeps families posted on the medical care being given the patient and answers any questions they might have.

The emergency department includes 11 treatment areas with one specially designed to fully monitor cardiac cases. Each area is separated by walls—not curtains—to insure privacy and is equipped with centralized oxygen, suction, medical air and electrical outlets.

The emergency department also includes its own operating room for minor surgery and an orthopedic or "cast room" large enough to handle three patients simultaneously.

Other attractive features of our emergency department are its colorful modern decor and comforting atmosphere.

Greatly expanded out-patient services. The Mother Frances Pavilion recognizes the trend toward out-patient service rather than in-patient hospitalization. Six examination rooms have been provided where ear, eye, nose and throat exams, proctoscopic, gynecological, endoscopy procedures and general exams can be performed.

And whatever your medical problem might be, you'll find a specialist for it in The Family. Holy Family has 177 physicians on staff covering such diverse specialties as plastic surgery, dermatology, opthamology and psychiatry.

Personalized and computerized cardiac and intensive care. An important part of the Mother Frances Pavilion is a fully modern 18-bed facility in our new circular building designed specifically to provide the utmost in both visual and electronic monitoring of critically-ill patients.

Rooms are located around the exterior of the building, allowing for constant personal supervision of the patients from two nursing stations in the center of the unit.

The vital signs of each patient are monitored by highly sensitive electronic equipment. A continuous computer print-out on each patient that will detect the slightest deviation in heart activity or other vital functions is centralized at the nursing stations. Holy Family is first in the state and the second hospital in the Nation to offer such highly sophisticated computerized patient monitoring. The ground floor of this building houses other highly sophisticated equipment to conduct brain scans and tests of the central nervous systems.

Next year Holy Family will celebrate its 15th year of service to the northwest suburban area. With the addition of the Mother Frances Pavilion we can provide you and your family with a broad range of quality health care services. And we intend to keep on innovating with this goal in mind.

HOW OUR FAMILY CARES FOR YOUR FAMILY...

As part of our continuing effort to provide quality medical care for families in the northwest suburban area, Holy Family is pleased to announce the formal dedication of our new Mother Frances Pavilion on November 12, 1975. Here's what this means to you and your family.

A better way to handle emergencies. Instead of an emergency "room" we have a completely modern emergency department. It's designed, equipped and staffed to provide treatment as fast as possible and in a way that respects your privacy.

Upon entering the emergency department reception area, a specially trained, registered "triage" nurse makes initial assessments of your medical need and determines priorities among patients to assure the best possible service. The triage nurse also keeps families posted on the medical care being given the patient and answers any questions they might have.

The emergency department includes 11 treatment areas with one specially designed to fully monitor cardiac cases. Each area is separated by walls—not curtains—to insure privacy and is equipped with centralized oxygen, suction, medical air and electrical outlets.

The emergency department also includes its own operating room for minor surgery and an orthopedic or "cast room" large enough to handle three patients simultaneously.

Other attractive features of our emergency department are its colorful modern decor and comforting atmosphere.

Greatly expanded out-patient services. The Mother Frances Pavilion recognizes the trend toward out-patient service rather than in-patient hospitalization. Six examination rooms have been provided where ear, eye, nose and throat exams, proctoscopic, gynecological, endoscopy procedures and general exams can be performed.

And whatever your medical problem might be, you'll find a specialist for it in The Family. Holy Family has 177 physicians on staff covering such diverse specialties as plastic surgery, dermatology, opthamology and psychiatry.

Personalized and computerized cardiac and intensive care. An important part of the Mother Frances Pavilion is a fully modern 18-bed facility in our new circular building designed specifically to provide the utmost in both visual and electronic monitoring of critically-ill patients. Rooms are located around the exterior of the building, allowing for constant personal supervision of the patients from two nursing stations in the center of the unit.

The vital signs of each patient are monitored by highly sensitive electronic equipment. A continuous computer print-out on each patient that will detect the slightest deviation in heart activity or other vital functions is centralized at the nursing stations. Holy Family is first in the state and the second hospital in the Nation to offer such highly sophisticated computerized patient monitoring. The ground floor of this building houses other highly sophisticated equipment to conduct brain scans and tests of the central nervous systems.

Next year Holy Family will celebrate its 15th year of service to the northwest suburban area. With the addition of the Mother Frances Pavilion we can provide you and your family with a broad range of quality health care services. And we intend to keep on innovating with this goal in mind.

The way we see it

Strike call is premature

Teachers in East Maine Dist. 63 are acting prematurely by calling a strike for Wednesday.

Members of the Dist. 63 Board of Education have stated repeatedly that they are willing to continue negotiations until a contract settlement is reached.

Teachers last week voted overwhelmingly to stage a walk-out Wednesday. Contract talks have been going on in the district since March and broke down Sept. 29 when teachers declared an impasse and a mediator was called in to aid in a settlement.

After one session with a mediator, teachers called for a strike vote, saying mediation was not helping negotiations.

Teachers have rejected the board's latest 6 per cent salary increase offer and are demanding a 9.5 per cent increase for the year. Both salary offers are in addition to the annual 2.8 per cent increase teachers receive for an additional year's experience.

Not only does salary remain unsettled but a number of other items including fringe benefits, guidelines for staff cuts and extra-duty pay.

What troubles us most about the scheduled strike is that it comes at a time when the board is ready and willing to continue negotiations. The board has stated publicly and in writing that its negotiating team is available for mediation or negotiations.

We understand the teachers' impatience with the lack of a contract settlement. But we believe teachers should not plunge into a strike when they still have the option of working out an agreement.

The board has reacted to the strike by sending all teachers letters explaining Illinois law and the district's policy regarding teacher strikes. The letter clearly explains that a teacher is putting his or her job on the line if he participates in a walk-out.

There is an unfortunate pattern that seems to develop in prolonged contract negotiations. Both sides begin pulling out their clubs, tempers flare and the possibility for a reasonable solution flies out the window as teachers and board drift further apart.

This is happening now in Dist. 63 and we can only hope that both sides back off before it is too late.

I'm mad at the school board! Hands up!

Cheney: 'no political ambitions'

Family first to top Ford aide

by RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON — At the White House Richard Bruce Cheney may be the odd man in.

Once his days as President Ford's new chief of staff are over, Cheney wants to quit politics.

"My first loyalty is to my family," he said. "The most important thing in my life is my family."

Appointed last week to succeed Donald Rumsfeld, who was named defense secretary in the President's Cabinet shakeup, Cheney does not wrestle with the impossible dream of so many past and present Washington officials. To him the Oval Office down the hall does not beckon.

RICHARD B. CHENEY

A dream that does bring a smile to his face is that of "putting on my backpack and with my family heading for the high country."

Cheney sits in a White House office bare of political momentos. A photograph of his wife, Lynne, and his two daughters is the decoration.

He may be the second most powerful man in the White House, the man who makes sure the President gets the raw material for decision-making and makes sure those decisions are carried out.

He does not sneer at politics or politicians.

"Politics may be the most noble profession," he said. "I care a great deal. But, honestly, I do believe there are a great many different things to do with your life."

At 34, Cheney has been an academic star, an intern in the offices of former Gov. Warren Knowles of Wisconsin and Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Wis., top aide to Rumsfeld at the Office of Economic Opportunity and Cost of Living Council, and a successful private financial adviser in private business before rejoining Rumsfeld as deputy White House chief of staff.

Now he has what he believes is a "very rare privilege," serving a President. But when it is over "it will not all be painful." He will return to investment counseling when Ford leaves the White House.

Cheney believes he probably can do a better job for the President because he lacks political ambition. There is not much evidence that his predecessors, including Rumsfeld, would have agreed.

"Here one is inhibited and impaired if the sole mission in your life is to always have a political job," he explained.

"In this job one must have a sense of who you are . . . an independence from pressure."

Cheney says a chief of staff must be able to speak the truth to the President, untainted by political what-might-be's.

He also believes he must never lose that sense of awe at working in the White House. It is important in more than dealing with the President.

"When someone brings a problem to the White House, that man might have been wresting with the problem for two years. To you it might be one of 50 things on your desk. But you must always remember that, to the man with the problem, that problem is the biggest thing in his life and you must respond in a way he expects and deserves," Cheney said.

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1975 with 50 to follow. This is Armistice (Veterans) Day, celebrated as a holiday this year on Oct. 27.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus and Jupiter.

The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

American actor Pat O'Brien was born Nov. 11, 1899.

On this day in history:

• In 1889, Washington was admitted to the Union as the 42nd state.

• In 1918, fighting in World War I ended with the signing of the Armistice.

• In 1921, President Warren Harding dedicated the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery.

• In 1965, white-ruled Rhodesia declared its independence from Britain.

She's irked by city's dog license fee schedule

I was surprised to find out the City of Rolling Meadows has hired two service officers to chase stray dogs. Another investment made by the city was a van for the specific purpose of transporting the dogs.

Is this why, after 12 years of living in the city and owning a dog, we are now being forced to buy a $3 dog license in addition to paying a $3 late fine? The license is good only until Dec. 31, at which time we will have to purchase another for 1976. I don't think I would mind if the city had told me this was a necessity sometime in February or March, but at this late date I really feel they are picking my pocket of $6 for an ordinance that has not been enforced in the 12 years we've lived here and owned a dog.

The question enters my mind: Is this license necessary as long as my dog has a rabies tag? If it is a necessity, why has the police department been lax in its duty of enforcing this ordinance the previous 11 years?

'Reject Democrats'

Before taking a position in the Mayor Daley-Gov. Walker feud, remember that both of these power-mad men are members of the majority political party in Illinois. For years their party has been greedily spending, borrowing and maneuvering to keep political control through the military draft, war, welfare and patronage. Interest payments have finally caught up with this policy of war, welfare, patronage, inflation, spending, borrowing and resulting unproductivity to the extent that nearly every city and state controlled by the Democratic party is either broke or facing bankruptcy.

One of the objectives of every U.S. citizen during the coming Bicentennial year should be getting back to the principles on which this great nation was founded. This calls for rejecting the Daley-Walker forces or similar forces that have only their own selfish interest and not the nation's interest at heart. Hopefully such forces can be stopped at the ballot box in 1976 without another revolution.

Lasers applauded

Our PTSA historian forgot to buy film to record the beautiful crowd who came to Plum Grove PTSA to hear Mr. Frederick Palmer of Illinois Bell demonstrate laser beams.

Approximately 300 people listened to Mr. Palmer explain the concept of laser beams and their varied uses in the communication field, medicine, plane industry, etc.

The program raised many questions from students, teachers and parents. We really could have spent at least another half hour questioning Mr. Palmer. However, PTSA does mean young people in the audience and we are obligated to see that they reach home by a reasonable time of night, having school the following morning.

"Trip the Light Fantastic" was a fascinating program, and we highly recommend it to any group for an educational, imaginative and thought-provoking evening.

Schlesinger: how he was fired

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some citizens may have found it curious that the first confirmation of James Schlesinger's dismissal as Secretary of Defense came from Sen. Henry Jackson's reaction to the unannounced action.

But to anyone who understands how things work around here, that sequence seemed perfectly in order.

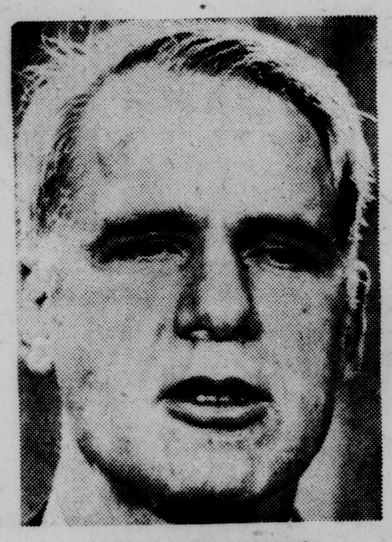
Anytime there is a high level government firing, the question arises as to how the firer breaks the news to the firee. Usually, the decision is made at a meeting between the President and his top aides.

Now that the tape recorders have been removed from the Oval Office, we may never see the exact transcript of the talks that led up to the ouster of Schlesinger and CIA Director William Colby.

It is possible, however, to reconstruct what I feel sure is a reasonably accurate facsimile of the discussion.

"Okay, you guys," the President says, "Schlesinger has got to go. What's the best way to approach it?"

"How about putting a pink slip in his pay envelope?" one of the aides suggests.



JAMES SCHLESINGER

"That won't do," the President replies. "He has already been paid for October and I don't want to wait until the end of November to give him the gate."

A second aide says, "You could have the Pentagon remove the door to his office during the week end and replace it with a gate."

"Too subtle," the President replies. "We don't want to leave any doubt that he is being sacked."

The second aide says, "Maybe you could give a picnic for the cabinet and let Schlesinger win the sack race."

"Too obvious," the President replies. "I want this handled as tactfully as possible."

"I'm just thinking off the top of my head," a third aide says, "but why don't we get Bo Callaway to issue a statement asserting that you would be better off with a younger man as your Secretary of Defense?

"When Callaway as your campaign manager said that about the Vice President, everyone instantly assumed that Rockefeller was being dumped. If he says it about the Defense Secretary, maybe Schlesinger will take the hint and resign."

"That's no good either," the President replies. "Schlesinger is only 46."

"I think I've got it!" cries the aide whose pink slip suggestion was rejected. "When you fire Schlesinger, you fire William Colby at the same time.

"Anything even remotely connected with the CIA these days is immediately leaked to the press. So whoever leaks the news of Colby's dismissal as CIA director undoubtedly will mention that Schlesinger is being ousted too.

"Then one of Schlesinger's supporters in the Senate will hear about it and issue a statement defending him."

"Now we're getting somewhere," the President replies. It's always better to keep these things quiet until the adverse reaction has subsided."

NEW YORK (UPI) — An afternoon rally left the stock market little changed Monday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than six points at one time, fell only 0.32 point to 835.48. The closely-followed average had lost 5.12 points Friday.

The broader Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.01 to 89.04 and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased by one cent. The market's breadth figures showed the uncertainty and the hope. Of the 1,836 issues crossing the tape, 763 declined, 638 advanced and 435 remained unchanged.

VOLUME, WHICH PICKED up in the afternoon, totaled 14,910,000 shares, compared with 15,930,000 traded Friday.

General Motors, the most active Big Board issue, proved a drag on the market following conflicting reports members of the Federal Trade Commission were considering an investigation of antitrust actions against the auto giant. The issue closed at 55½ off 2 1/8 on 327,600 shares, including an opening block of 79,600 shares at 55¼.

Asarco was the second most active issue, off 5/8 to 12-3/8 on 293,000 shares, including a block of 225,000 shares at 12. Pan American World Airways, which reported lower October results, followed unchanged at 4-5/8 on 190,000 shares. Long Island Lighting was fourth, up 1/8 to 15¼ on 173,700 shares, including a block of 102,700 shares at 25.

Prices closed irregularly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share gained three cents. Volume totaled 1,420,000 shares, compared with 1,400,000 traded Friday.

Dems asked to slate Walter Dahl

Arlington judge in high court bid

Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl of Arlington Heights is one of eight persons who asked to be slated Democratic candidates for the Illinois Supreme Court.

Dahl's name was among those submitted to the Chicago Bar Assn. for review by Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The group is seeking to replace two justices who will leave the bench next year. Supreme Court Justices Walter V. Schaefer and Thomas Kluzcynski have announced they will retire.

Besides Dahl, Daley has asked the lawyer's group to review requests from Chief Criminal Court Judge Joseph A. Power; Appellate Court Judges Henry W. Dieringer, Seymour Simon, Robert J. Downing and John J. Sullivan; Criminal Court Judge Marvin Aspen, and attorney James A. Dooley.

A spokesman for the bar association said they will rate each applicant as "well qualified," "qualified" or "not qualified." The recommendations are expected later this month.

Judge Walter P. Dahl

A final decision on nominees for the two posts will be made by the Cook County Democratic Central Committee by Dec. 15.

U. S. REP. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, will take part in a town meeting Sunday on the controversial proposed criminal justice reform act, Senate bill S-1.

The meeting will be held from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, 1630 Hinman St., Evanston.

The new legislation has been attacked by a number of groups over provisions dealing with individual freedoms and sections viewed as press censorship by some observers.

Reagan to tell Presidential bid plans

State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, Monday confirmed that former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will announce plans to seek the Republican nomination for President next week in Chicago.

Totten, who is Reagan's Illinois campaign manager, said the announcement will come Nov. 20 in Washington and Nov. 21 in Chicago and other major cities across the country.

He added that more than 50 per cent of the GOP precinct captains, which Reagan supporters have contacted, indicated they would support him in a head to head Illinois primary fight with President Gerald R. Ford.

A poll of county Republican officials during the weekend indicated they supported the president over Reagan by better than a 2-to-1 margin.

However, Totten said Reagan has an excellent chance of winning the nomination. He repeated a prediction that Ford will drop his bid for reelection.

Totten's comments countered reports from Richard Ogilvie, who is managing Ford's campaign in Illinois. Ogilvie predicted Reagan would not be able to capture the nomination.

"A lot of people like Reagan. I do myself. But there is no way he can take on Ford and win the nomination and go on and win the election. It would be so divisive that we would not be able to put the party back together again," Ogilvie said.

Randhurst hosts singers

The Conti Family Singers will appear at the Randhurst Shopping Center Nov. 20-22.

The singers will perform at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 20 and 21 and at 2:30 p.m. Nov. 22. The performances are free and will be presented in Randhurst's Promotion Court.

Randhurst offers free gift wrapping

Three Saturdays in November have been designated free gift wrapping days by Randhurst Shopping Center to encourage early holiday shopping and mailing.

Professional gift wrappers will offer free wrapping from 1 to 5 p.m. this Saturday and Nov. 22, and from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Nov. 29. Items of $5 or more must be purchased at Randhurst on that date and a receipt of purchase must accompany each gift wrap request.

Packages may be mailed in a free-standing U.S. Postal Service station in the shopping center's south parking lot area.

Grand jury reports

Cop spies knew of 'days of rage'

by United Press International

A grand jury has concluded Chicago police, through spying activities, knew in advance plans for the 1969 "days of rage" demonstrations by the Students For a Democratic Society and did nothing to stop it.

State's Atty. Bernard J. Carey, reporting on the grand jury's investigation of the police spying apparatus Monday, said undercover agents had managed to infiltrate the SDS and learned a week in advance of the violence planned by the antiwar demonstrators.

The demonstrators swept through Chicago "Gold Coast" and Loop areas, smashing windows and battling police.

The grand jury said the undercover men "witnessed acts in furtherance of this conspiracy, including gathering of weapons, the drawing of maps, and the preparations for escape.

". . . POLICE COULD have arrested the leadership of the Weathermen radical wing of the SDS and prevented the riots, but they did not."

Carey said the grand jury determined many of the police spying activities were illegal and most were a waste of time and money.

The grand jury returned no indictments, but recommended Police Supt. James Rochford discipline 13 policemen the grand jury said "have acted illegally and beyond their authority."

The grand jury also requested Circuit Court Judge Richard Fitzgerald, who received its report, to hold former Police Supt. James B. Conlisk in contempt for his refusal to fully answer questions.

The grand jury found that after five years, the Chicago Police Dept. had nothing to show for its intensive efforts except a waste of money and time and the serious abuse of the constitutional rights of the people of Cook County, Carey said.

The grand jury investigated charges that Chicago police illegally infiltrated six community organizations.

"The testimony and documents examined by the grand jury revealed repeated instances of wrongdoing that could have provided the basis for indictments," he said. "However, the grand jury concluded that the return of indictments would not serve the best interests of our community."

HE SAID THE grand jury also thought that, "prosecution would merely highlight a few disjointed criminal acts and would probably enable city officials to shift the attention of the public away from the great threat to individual rights and freedom posed by abusive Chicago police intelligence activities."

The grand jury began its investigation last March after Chicago newspapers reported police had infiltrated six community organizations — the Citizens Action Program, the Organization for a Better Austin, the Alliance to End Repression, Operation Push, the Independent Voters of Illinois, and the Metropolitan Area Housing Alliance.

The Rev. Albin Ciciora, president of CAP, called the decision not to return indictments an "outrage . . . that verifies the serious need for free and open citizens groups who challenge the system. This decision is tantamount to condoning police spying."

Proposed noise law 'good muffler'

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Task Force on Noise Monday said its proposed new noise regulations for cars and small trucks would not require much more than adequate mufflers.

The task force has put together proposed regulations that are under consideration by the Illinois Pollution Control Board. While federal regulations cover noise levels of interstate trucks weighing 10,000 pounds or more, there are no state regulations defining acceptable noise levels for vehicles.

Sheldon Plager, law professor at the University of Illinois and chairman of the task force, told the Illinois Motor Vehicle Laws Commission the proposal would set acceptable decibel levels for vehicles and trucks in the state.

He said that under the proposal, federal levels would be used in the state law for trucks weighing 24,000 pounds or more. These levels would require the heavy trucks not to exceed 86 decibels while traveling 35 miles per hour or less and 90 decibels at more than 35 miles per hour. Eighty decibels is equivalent to noise in a busy office and 90 decibels is—888 equal to heavy city traffic or the noise from a subway.

FOR MEDIUM-SIZED trucks in the 8,000-to 24,000-pound range, the proposal would require that vehicles emit 82 decibels or less under 35 m.p.h. and 88 decibels or less over 35 m.p.h.

Autos and light trucks and vans would have to meet requirements requiring noise emissions of 74 decibels at 35 m.p.h. or under and 82 decibels at more than 35 m.p.h.

Plager said most of the vehicle noise problems come from trucks weighing more than 24,000 pounds. He said it would be necessary to fit some of them with noise dampening devices at a cost of about $120.

Trucking interests disputed Plager's figure, however, saying the cost for fitting the large trucks would run closer to $800.

Plager said the cost to bring lighter vehicles into compliance would average $100 or less since it would require only a muffler to bring them up to the proposed standards.

State Rep. Robert Craig, D-Danville, the commission's chairman, opposed the proposal. "When Illinois goes any further than the federal regulations, we are imposing hardships on the people of Illinois," he said.

Craig also appointed a subcommittee to testify against the proposal at the next hearing of the Pollution Control Board on the subject.

County mailing for property changes

Notices to seniors not for late taxes

Hundreds of real estate tax error certificates which were mailed to Northwest suburban senior citizens last week are not notices of delinquent taxes, a spokesman for County Assessor Thomas Tully said Monday.

The certificates, which indicate a change in property valuation or approval of a homestead exemption, are mailed annually as notice that the county assessor is seeking an assessment reduction from the Circuit Court.

Property owned by senior citizens who received Homestead Exemptions will not be included in the county's sale of tax delinquent property which begins Nov. 24, the spokesman said.

"The purpose of giving you notice is to perfect jurisdiction in court, not for the purpose of offering your property for sale," the spokesman said.

Property owners who qualiifed for homestead exemptions and who received error certificates were mailed a letter from Treasurer Edward J. Rosewell which explains the tax procedure, the spokesman said.

Intercourt suit filing topic of Finley talk

Circuit Court Clerk Morgan Finley will discuss the county's new intercourt filing system at a dinner meeting of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. Wednesday.

The dinner, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will be at the Elks Club in Des Plaines.

The intercourt filing system allows residents to file civil suits in any suburban or Chicago court district, despite origin of the complaint. Persons who planned suits previously were required to file the complaint in the local district with jurisdiction in the case.

Finley will attend the meeting with District 2 Chief Clerk Herman Rockowitz and District 3 Chief Clerk Donald Spiser.

County mailing for property changes

Notices to seniors not for late taxes

Hundreds of real estate tax error certificates which were mailed to Northwest suburban senior citizens last week are not notices of delinquent taxes, a spokesman for County Assessor Thomas Tully said Monday.

The certificates, which indicate a change in property valuation or approval of a homestead exemption, are mailed annually as notice that the county assessor is seeking an assessment reduction from the Circuit Court.

Property owned by senior citizens who received Homestead Exemptions will not be included in the county's sale of tax delinquent property which begins Nov. 24, the spokesman said.

"The purpose of giving you notice is to perfect jurisdiction in court, not for the purpose of offering your property for sale," the spokesman said.

Property owners who qualiifed for homestead exemptions and who received error certificates were mailed a letter from Treasurer Edward J. Rosewell which explains the tax procedure, the spokesman said.

Intercourt suit filing topic of Finley talk

Circuit Court Clerk Morgan Finley will discuss the county's new intercourt filing system at a dinner meeting of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. Wednesday.

The dinner, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will be at the Elks Club in Des Plaines.

The intercourt filing system allows residents to file civil suits in any suburban or Chicago court district, despite origin of the complaint. Persons who planned suits previously were required to file the complaint in the local district with jurisdiction in the case.

Finley will attend the meeting with District 2 Chief Clerk Herman Rockowitz and District 3 Chief Clerk Donald Spiser.

Do films hold key to cross country controversy?

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

York High School of Elmhurst has thrown a live grenade into the Bloomington headquarters of the Illinois High School Assn.

Principal James Nelson of York has filed an official request for an investigation into alleged irregularities at the IHSA cross country meet in Peoria Nov. 1.

The request stemmed from a report that two witnesses claimed to have seen a Bloom High School runner apparently emerge from a cluster of bushes and trees. Allegedly, the runner was Bloom's fifth man.

Bloom of Chicago Heights won the team title by four points over York.

After rumors circulated on the subject for a week, York High School acknowledged Monday that a formal request for an investigation was filed with the IHSA. As of Monday morning the IHSA office had not been notified officially.

"We're not claiming there was a kid in the bushes," said York cross country coach Joe Newton. "We're not filing a protest. We're just taking information that has come to us and we're passing it on to the state office."

Newton refused any further comment on the case.

H. David Fry, assistant executive secretary of the IHSA, was noncommittal.

"I've just had a couple of phone conversations about this thing," he said. "Nothing more. I don't know what we'd do. Until we hear official word, we really can't say. Then we'll evaluate the situation and make a decision."

When Fry receives official word, probably by today, these are the facts that will confront him:

Two spectators at the state meet, both students at Bradley-Bourbonnais High School, allegedly saw an unidentified Bloom runner running from the bushes near the final loop. They reported what they saw to the Bourbonnais coach.

An investigation would presumably determine if the Bloom runner cut the course by concealing himself in the bushes and then resuming the race on the final loop. If a Bloom runner did cut the course, the investigation would also most likely try to determine if that runner was Larry Griffin, Bloom's fifth man in the race.

"The kid ran the course," Bloom coach Don Slota said Monday. "All seven of our runners ran the course. Maybe they saw our student manager.

"This makes it a tainted victory," Slota added.

Griffin, ordinarily Bloom's seventh man, recorded his best time ever for three miles to save the victory for Slota's team. After entering the chute, Griffin collapsed and required medical attention.

Slota said that he has films of the race that will show Griffin ran the entire course.

Films may indeed hold the key to the controversy. Coach John Coughlan of Maine East filmed large segments of the race and may have the evidence that could substantiate Slota's claim. Several other films were taken and Coughlan is carefully going over the ones sent to him.

A Bloom runner appears in the background of one of Coughlan's films running the loop which Griffin allegedly cut. "It's fuzzy," said Coughlan, "but if he's back there, then he ran the race."

Coughlan wants to blow up the film — frame by frame — to establish a positive identification.

"I don't care which way it goes," said the Maine East coach. "I just want to do what's best for cross country."

Coughlan said he would be willing to take his films to the IHSA office if he is so requested.

"I'm just a spectator in this," he said. "But someone's got to do it."

The attention will now focus on the IHSA, where officials must make a decision on the request for an investigation. Fry, speaking from the IHSA office on Monday, indicated his dilemma.

"In this case a couple of spectators saw something that no official saw," said Fry. "Now the meet's been over for more than a week and the first I hear about it is — well, last Monday afternoon."

Fry and the IHSA are wrestling with a tough one this time.

Bewildered ducks migrate north

The tardy arrival of cooler, northerly air, punctuated by gusty winds Monday may have cleared the fog from the minds of some of the ducks and geese in this state.

Two readers called to report flights of mallards winging NORTH over the weekend in the wake of record-breaking temperatures and warm, gulf breezes.

But until the mercury begins flirting with the freezing mark, the perplexed waterfowl should be content to relax in the resort-type environment of Horicon Marsh in southern Wisconsin.

There are upwards of 200,000 Canada geese still enjoying the food-rich facilities at Horicon and until the grain either disappears or the marsh freezes over, Illinois shooters won't see them.

The Illinois upland game opener Saturday was far from quiet. Hunters who patroled the field at the sunrise were generally on their way home by mid-morning with their limit of two cock pheasants.

The dense fog that blanketed the area Saturday morning made identification the toughest problem for the stalking shooter.

Hunting buddy Ken McCreary and I worked an area in unincorporated Schaumburg, flushing five birds without the aid of a dog.

Despite balmy temperatures and relatively no wind, the ringnecks were anxious to fly, rather than run for their safety.

Two of the birds we flushed were masked by the pea-soup fog and because they didn't chatter during takeoff (characteristic of cock pheasants) and their wingbeats were indistinguishable, no shots were fired.

By mid-morning we were kicking stumps and brush piles in search of quail, rabbit and squirrel, but none were aroused. A good-working dog may have made the difference since nests for all species were discovered, but empty.

The Chain O' Lakes State Park, near Spring Grove, will be closed to campers now through Dec. 8. The campsites will be closed for the duration of the "put-and-take" pheasant hunting season which allows 90 hunters per day to use the park area on a permit basis.

Duck hunting will not interfere with camping as the waterfowl management are does not encompass the entire facility, but the large number of pheasant hunters using the recreation area requires the closing as a safety measure. Campers, hikers and other recreationists will be welcome back Dec. 9.

Muskie fishing is the topic of a three-week MONACEP course beginning on Wednesday, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Niles North High School, 9800 Lawler, Skokie.

Lincolnwood resident Stephen Statland, a fisherman for many years, will teach the how, what and where of fishing for the "tiger" of all fish — the muskellunge. Statland is a member of the National Muskie Assn. and the International Spin Fishing Assn.

The fee for the three-sessions is $10 for both resident and non-residents of Maine and Niles Townships. For further information, contact MONACEP, 967-5821.

More than 135,000 channel catfish are being stocked in 33 state lakes this fall, according to the Illinois Department of Conservation. The fish were purchased from a private fish dealer to be stocked in waters where reproduction of this species does not take place.

Fifty fish will be stocked per surface acre of water in the areas. Lakes to receive fish are Pierce, George, Johnson Sauk Trail, Wolf, Des Plaines Conservation Area, Warrior, Tomahawk, Big Lake, Lincoln Trail, Walnut Point, Long, No. 6, High and Inland Sea and Dawson.

Others include Weldon Springs, Beaver Dam, Siloam Springs, Randolph County, Horton, Weinberg-King, Washington County, Sam Par, Beall Woods, Stephen Forbes, Sam Dale, Ferne Clyffe, Jones, Murphysboro, Dolan, Red Hills, Ramsey and Mermet.

Some of the nation's best amateur figure skaters, including dozens of area residents, are among 218 participants in the 1976 Upper Great Lakes Regional Figure Skating Championships being held from Wednesday through Saturday at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena in Mount Prospect.

Sanctioned by the United States Figure Skating Association and sponsored by the Chicago Figure Skating Club, the event involves skaters between the ages of 8 and 21 from seven midwestern states. Winners will advance to Midwestern and National competitions and then be selected to represent the United States in the 1976 Winter Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria, next February.

Local skaters competing for honors in singles, pairs and dance categories — including members of the Chicago Figure Skating Club — are as follows, according to CFSC President Joseph L. Serafine:

Arlington Heights — Kimberley Sue Carney and Candy Christiansen, Buffalo Grove — Wanda Rotter, Des Plaines — Connie Becker and Kimberley Urso, Mount Prospect — Sandy Carlson and Karen DeAngelo, Prospect Heights — Beth and Frank Sweiding and Wheeling — Tammy Gambill.

In describing the championships, Serafine remarked that spectators will see both an entertaining artistic presentation and a physically demanding, exciting athletic event.

Entrants begin practicing at the Arena starting today. All practices are open to the public at no charge. Exciting eliminations begin Wednesday morning; finals start Thursday evening.

Admission tickets are required for competitive events and tickets are now available daily at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena for 2,500 unreserved seats.

Prices are as follows: Wednesday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at $1.00 and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at $1; Thursday and Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at $1 and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at $3 for adults and $2 for children 13 and under; Saturday, 8 a.m. to noon at $1, and from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., each at $3 for adults and $2 for children 13 and under. A block of tickets covering all events can also be purchased for $12.

Randhurst Twin Ice Arena is located at the southeast end of the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot, near the intersection of Rts. 12 and 83.

Little League meeting set

The Des Plaines West Park Major Little League will hold a meeting for all parents this evening, starting at 8:00. Site for this baseball meeting will be South Park, located on Wright and Howard streets.

USC grid post to Robinson

John Robinson, an obscure assistant pro coach was selected in a surprise move Monday to take over from John McKay as head football coach at the University of Southern California, perennial powerhouse among the nation's top college football teams. Robinson, 40, is offensive backfield coach with the Oakland Raiders, frequent contenders in the race for the Super Bowl, but he is not a stranger to the Trojan campus. He was backfield coach and quarterback coach under McKay for three years — 1972-74.

McKay was not present at the news conference which USC President John Hubbard opened by introducing Dr. Richard H. Perry, 46, who takes on the duties of athletic director, a job McKay held in addition to his football post. Perry, an associate professor of physical education at USC for eight years and an assistant athletic director under McKay, told the gathering his first job as athletic director was to introduce the new football coach.

Perry first described McKay as "a legend" and promptly put Robinson on the spot by calling him "a legend in the making." Terms or compensation for the new coach were not announced. McKay is leaving USC after 16 years as head coach to accept a lucratice offer to coach the Tampa Bay expansion team in the National Football League.

NBA-ABA merger shelved

Any hopes American Basketball Association teams entertained about joining the National Basketball Association in the foreseeable future were squashed Monday by the NBA Board of Governors. Obviously playing a cautious hand while a suit from their Players Association to block any merger of the two leagues is still pending, the NBA discussed the recent application from ABA teams and then decided to take no further action on the matter. Added an NBA spokesman: "None is foreseeable in the immediate future."

The players' lawsuit, which was filed five years ago when Oscar Robertson was president of the Players Association, is scheduled to come to trial next May. Basically, it seeks a permanent injunction preventing a merger in addition to contending the present option clause in players' contracts, the college draft and all compensation practices are illegal.

Bowl bidders getting nervous

The NCAA says the college bowls can start issuing invitations next Saturday, but it will take a couple of weeks to get them all sorted out. The big problem is that the Rose (Big Ten-Pac Eight), Orange (Big Eight) and Cotton (Southwest) bowls are all tied in to conference races which won't be decided for a while yet.

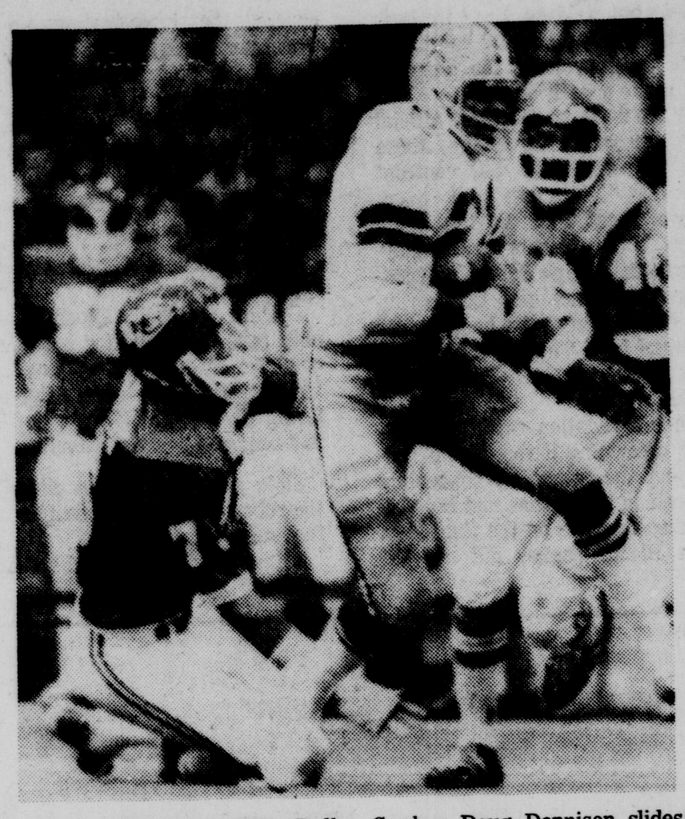
The Ohio State-Michigan and California-Stanford games on Nov. 22 should resolve the Rose Bowl entries and the Nov. 22 Nebraska-Oklahoma game and the Nov. 27 Texas-Texas A&M game will select the host teams for the Orange and Cotton bowls respectivelv.

Until those spots are filled, the other bowls won't know which teams from those four major conferences will be available for postseason appearances elsewhere. Word is that the Orang Bowl would like to invite the Big Ten runnerup to play the Big Eight champ and that the Sugar Bowl, which is expected to issue a bid to Southeastern Conference favorite Alabama this coming weekend, wants the Big Eight runnerup.

Colleges enter soccer playoffs

Three Illinois colleges have been named to compete in the NCAA Division III soccer tournament — McMurray, Lake Forest and Wheaton.

McMurray, seeded second, will entertain Lake Forest, seeded third Saturday, and Wheaton, seeded fourth, will play at Ohio Wesleyan, top seeded. The winners will play for the regional title with the victor entering the national playoff at Brockport State, N.Y.



KANSAS CITY SQUEEZE. Dallas Cowboy Doug Dennison slides between Chief defenders en route to short gain during Monday night's nationally-televised football game.

KC Chiefs upset fumbling Dallas

Ed Podolak, who scored two touchdowns within 23 seconds of each other near the ned of the first half, produced a third and winning-score with 10 minutes remaining Monday night and the Kansas City Chiefs took advantage of five fumble recoveries to upset the Dallas Cowboys, 34-31.

Podolak scored from the one with 1:20 remaining in the half to tie the score at 17-17 and then, after Doug Dennison fumbled the following kickoff on his 15, Podolak took only two plays to score on a run of 11 yards.

The Chiefs also seized another fumble early in the second period to score their other touchdown. Preston Pearson dropped the ball at his own four-yard line, and after the ball ricocheted into his own end zone, Chiefs defensive end John Matuszak fell on it for another score.

The Cowboys' two touchdowns came on a nine-yard run by quarterback Roger Staubach and a 15-yard pass to flanker Golden Richards, who made a juggling catch in the back of the end zone.

Ashe advances in net tourney

Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe Monday led a charge of three Americans into the third round of the $90,000 Dewar Tennis Tournament at Edinburgh with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Mike Estop of Dallas. Eddie Dibbs and Fred McNair also advanced . . . Lucky Debonair, winner of the 1965 Kentucky Derby, was sold to a South American bidder at the dispersal of Mrs. Ida L. Rice's Danada Farms, but the purchase price was not revealed . . .

Ohio State maintains top perch

Ohio State, 9-0 on the season and a 40-3 victor over Illinois Saturday, maintained a stranglehold in the balloting for United Press International's top 20 college football teams with 39 first-place votes and 417 points. The 39 votes are just three short of the full complement of 42 submitted by the nation's coaches.

Nebraska, also 9-0, jumped into second position, receiving the three remaining first-place ballots and assuming the position previously owned by Oklahoma which was upset by Kansas, 23-3.

Rounding out the top 10 are third-ranked Texas A&M (8-0), Michigan (7-0-2), Alabama (8-1), Texas (8-1), Oklahoma (8-1), Arizona State, (9-0), Notre Dame (7-2) and Penn State (8-2).

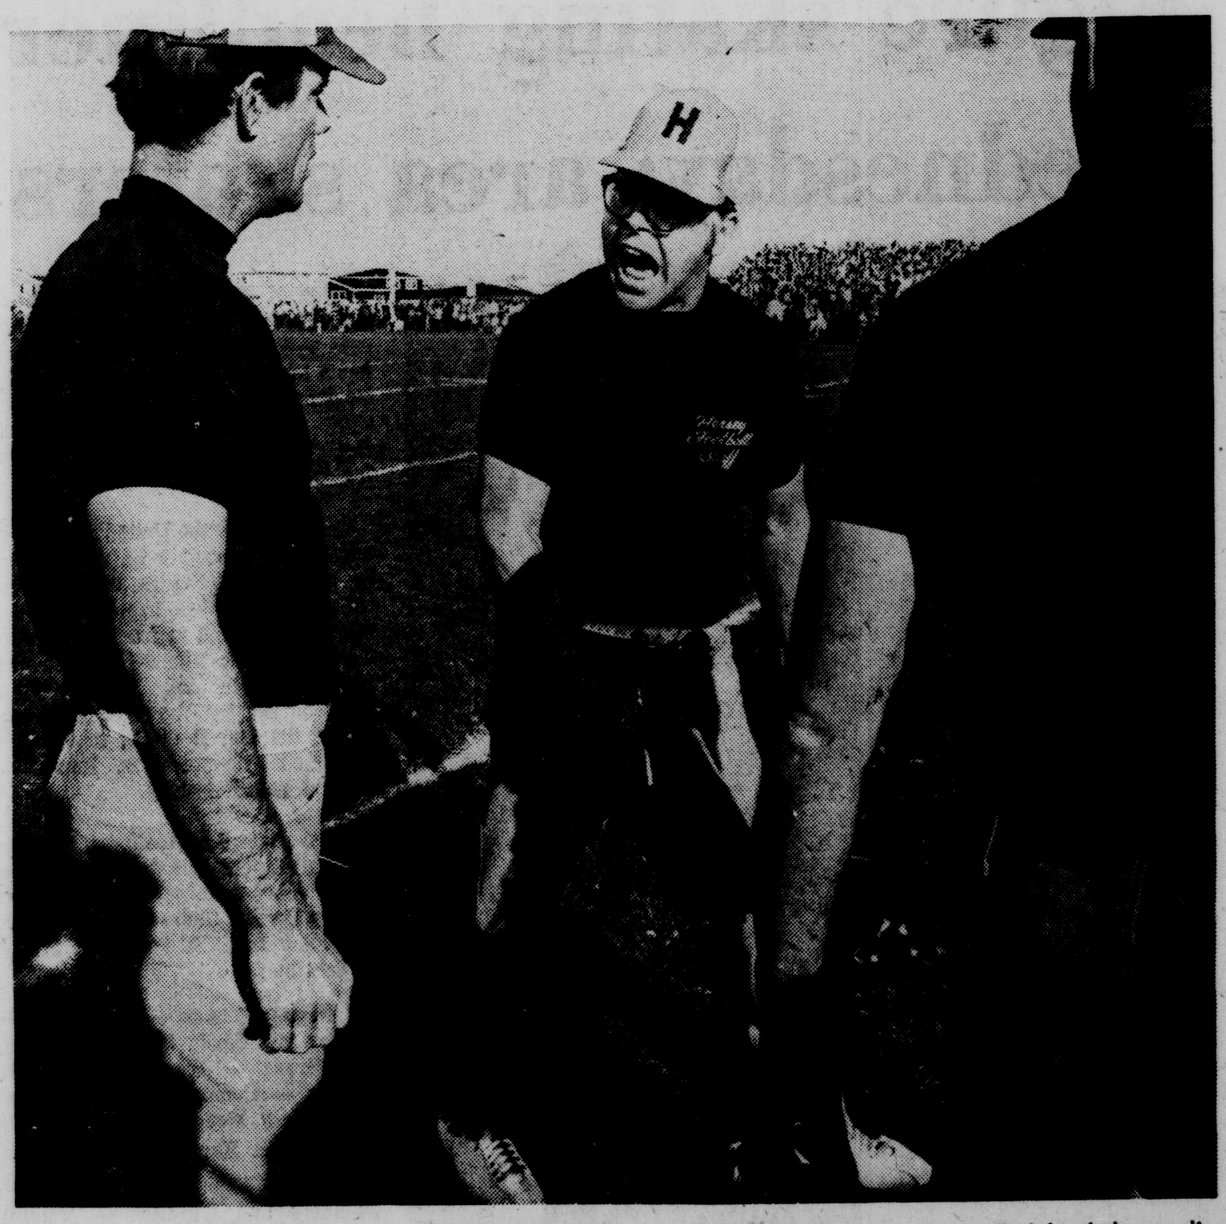
Bowling

At Elk Grove Bowl

Things tightened up considerably in the Wholly Bowlers Sunday Night Mixed League at Elk Grove Bowl. Five teams came up with four points to leave the top six teams separated by only three points. Leading the pack were the Odd Balls and the Four Of Us . . . In individual action, Sue Kaiser led all bowlers with a 525 series and a high game of 220 . . . Mary Lou Tansey had the best pins-over-average night for the ladies, bowling 104 pins over. Gloria Brenner was close behind with 101 pins over her average . . . Ken Spratt rolled a 515 series to lead the men. He was followed by Dick Moran with a 511 and Mike Tansey with a 510. High game for the men was a 192 by Tansey. Most pins-over-average award for the night went to Tom Bartlett who topped his average by 115 pins. The house marksmanship award for the night went to Bert Clarbour for his pickup of the 5-10 split.

At Fair Lanes

The Micro-Waves fired a 2131 series and a 733 game to pace the Thursday Eye Openers League at Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows Bowl. Leading the league were teammates Shirley Twigg (542-211) and Esther Soukup (536-193) . . . Other fine efforts were turned in by Claire Bakowski 483-171, Scotty Cole 472-189, Lee Moranda 183, Laurie Wren 177, Carol Simmons 171, Meg Easterwood 168, Red Oravetz 168 and Jean Brogdon 164 . . . Split conversions were made by Oravetz 3-7 and Twigg 5-7.



TOURNEY EMOTION. Hersey High School's head football coach Joe Gliwa turns around in stunned disbelief after Loyola back Mark Steger streaked 66 yards for an apparent touchdown on Ramblers' first play from scrimmage Saturday in state tournament playoffs. The play was called back by a clip, but Loyola did go in to score on the series. The Ramblers edged Hersey, 10-3, and will play Deerfield Saturday in the semi-finals. (Photo by Dave Tonge)

Pro-am spot still open for Brunswick tourney

Only 60 spots remain for amateur bowlers wishing to enter the pro-am portion of the Brunswick World Open here, according to Lloyd Coover, manager of Brunswick Northern Bowl, site of the $100,000 tournament. All 60 spots are in the 11 p.m. shift.

The fifth annual World Open kicks off with a pro-am event on Sunday, Nov. 16. More than 300 amateurs will be bowling for $18,000 in prize money, including a $1,000 first prize. In addition each amateur bowler will receive a Brunsiwck Crown Jewel 75 bowling ball which retails for $44.95. For information on the pro-am, telephone Northern Bowl at 858-1300.

The pro portion of the tournament is scheduled to begin with the first round of qualifying on Monday, Nov. 17. At the end of qualifying Wednesday, Nov. 19, the field will be cut to the top one-third, and then to the top 24 Thursday evening, Nov. 20

The top five surviving head-to-head competition Thursday night and Friday will move on to the nationally televised finals on Saturday, Nov. 22. CBS-TV will televise the finals from 3:30 to 5 p.m. First prize is $14,000.

As of Nov. 4, 166 U.S. pros and 15 foreign champions had entered. The U.S. entries include all former World Open champions: Don Johnson, Las Vegas, Nev., who won back-to-back titles in 1971 and 1972; Jim Godman, Lorain, Ohio, who broke Johnson's string in 1973, and defending champion Johnny Petraglia, Staten Island, N.Y.

Also entered is Earl Anthony, Tacoma, Wash., who recently set two records when he won his seventh tournament of 1975 and became the first pro bowler to ever win $100,000 in a single year.

Foreign entries registered to date include six bowlers from Japan, three from the Philippines, two from West German, two from Sweden and one each from Canada, Finland, Guatemala and Puerto Rico. Three more entries from South America are expected before the tournament is scheduled to start.

Hoffman Jaycees plan special bowling event

Northwest suburban keglers will bowl for "books" and "boys" as well as "bucks" in the First Annual Hoffman Estates Jaycees Bowling Tournament.

The tournament, open to all league bowlers offers a first place prize of over $1,600 and will begin Saturday, Nov. 15 and run for three consecutive weekends through Sunday, Nov. 30 at Hoffman Bowl, Route 72 (Higgins Road) and Roselle Road in Hoffman Estates.

Registration blanks are available at Hoffman Bowl or by calling Hoffman Bowl at 885-2500.

The registration fee is $12.50 per bowler, with five dollars of every fee ticketed to community charities including the Hoffman Estates Boys Club and the Schaumburg Township Library.

"In the current economy, a lot of people can't afford out-and-out donations. But through this tournament they can enjoy bowling and help the community at the same time," said Dan Raymond, tournament chairman.

In addition to the tourney prize money, prizes will be awarded each of the three weeks during the tournament for the men and women high game and high series.

The tournament will begin at 6 p.m. Nov. 15 with additional starting times at 9 p.m. and midnight.

Sunday tournament times begin at noon and are scheduled for three, six and ten p.m. The winners will be announced following the final round on Sunday, Nov. 30.

League bowlers will be awarded their league handicap for the tournament. Bowlers not in a league will be awarded a scratch handicap based on a 165 average for women and 175 average for men.

The American Academy of Gymnastics, Inc. girls and boys teams traveled to Waukesha, Wis. where they participated in the Wisconsin Open Gymnastics Championships. They did not compete for a team trophy.

The Academy boys captured all the medals in the USGF Intermediate Compulsories, age 12-14.

Henry de'Groh of Arlington Heights captured the gold medal on still rings and long horse vaulting. He brought home the bronze medal on parallel bars and the fourth place ribbons on floor exercise, pommel horse and zontal bar and picked up a third place in the all-around competition.

Mount Prospect's Dean Hellickson won the third place medals on floor exercise, pommel horse and horizontal bar. He settled for the fourth place ribbons in all-around competition, parallel bars, still rings and long horse vaulting.

In the USGF Boys Beginner Compulsories, David Oak of Arlington Heights notched the silver medals on floor exercise and pommel horse. He settled for fourth place on the still rings, side horse vaulting and horizontal bar. David finished sixth on parallel bars and third in the all-around competition.

When the girls USGF Advanced Compulsories were completed, the Academy's strongest showing came on the uneven bars where Shelly Miller won the gold medal, Donna Silber of Mount Prospect the silver and Christa Canary the bronze.

On the balance beam Christa won the gold medal and Donna the silver. Donna danced to fifth place on floor exercise.

For awards for the Advanced girls both the compulsory and optional scores were combined to determine the winners. Donna won the gold medal on balance beam, placed fourth in vaulting while teammate Laurie Birk placed fifth.

When the finals were completed for floor exercise Donna notched the bronze medal while Christa settled for the fourth place ribbon.

In the compulsory all-around competition Donna won the silver medal, Christa took the bronze medal and Shelly the fourth place ribbon.

Wednesday's special at Northwest YMCA

Wednesday night is a very special night at Northwest Suburban YMCA. From 7 to 10 p.m. swimming classes are held for people with special needs. These are people who cannot participate in larger group classes, such as physically handicapped, mentally handicapped, post operatives and cardiac rehabilitation.

The classes are conducted on a one to one basis using volunteer instructors. The objective of the program is to assimilate these people into the regular progressive swimming program at the YMCA.

Approximately 75 people from three to 64 years of age are currently involved in the program which is offered free of charge as a community service. Caryl Crouch of Deerfield is the Volunteer director of the program. She is assisted by 80 volunteers from these various organizations — Hersey High School volunteer group, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Job's Duaghters, YMCA junior leaders and many interested youth and adults from the surrounding community.

Anyone interested in participating in the program or working as a volunteer should contact Gerry Greig, program director, at the Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines, at 296-3376.

'We're both human beings'

Bleier, Sipple—a common bond

by IRA BERKOW

Rocky Bleier is an American hero. So was Oliver Sipple.

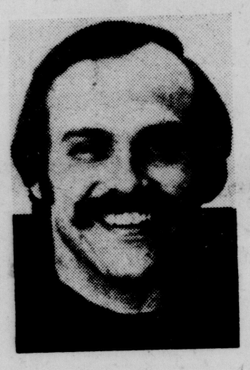
Bleier and Sipple both saw combat as American servicemen in Vietnam, both were decorated for valor, both are receiving disability pay.

As civilians back in the states, both performed highly publicized heroic deeds.

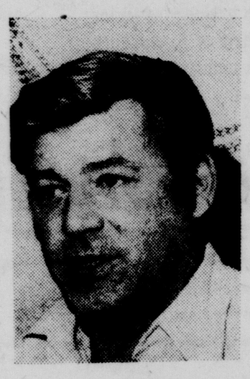
Bleier is a starting running back on the Super Bowl-champion Pittsburgh Steelers — and as if this weren't mythic enough in the eyes of the public, Bleier was resolute enough to struggle back after his legs were shot up in Vietnam (doctors thought he might never walk again, let alone run).

Oliver Sipple is credited with saving the life of the President of the United States. Sipple became widely known on Sept. 22 when police said he knocked aside a gun aimed by Sara Jane Moore while in a crowd on a San Francisco street. Miss Moore is charged with attempting to assassinate President Ford.

Bleier is acclaimed, receiving the cheers of multitudes on Sundays,



Rocky Bleier



Oliver Sipple

showered with a sympathetic press, the author (with Terry O'Neill) of a recently published autobiography, "Fighting Back."

The first time Sipple had a chance to speak with his mother by phone after his sudden recognition, she hung up on him. Recently, Sipple has filed a $15 million invasion of privacy suit against news media for reporting that he was a homosexual.

Sipple's suit charges that through news reports, "his brothers and his sisters learned for the first time of his homosexual orientation, and accordingly and consequentially abandoned the plaintiff."

In addition, the suit said he was exposed to contempt and ridicule, causing him great "mental anguish, embarrassment and humiliation."

Bleier was in New York recently, the day, it happened, of Sipple's suit.

"I feel lousy about this," said Bleier, from under his prominent mustache. He was wearing a colorful sport jacket on his thick, 5-10 frame. His eyes are candid behind his glasses, his speech is forthright.

He neither looks nor sounds like the stereotype football player.

"I think I know what it's like to be in Sipple's shoes — people are always saying to me, 'Jeez, you don't seem like a football player,' " said Bleier.

"And in a way football players and homosexuals have a common bond — we're both stereotyped. A football player is generally considered to be not real bright, not able to read terribly well, who walks around with his knuckles dragging on the ground.

"A gay is supposed to be a pervert, one who exposes himself in men's rooms, who is a threat to young boys. Well, this is far from the truth, according to my information.

"For example, I thought it was interesting what Leonard Matlovich had to say about it. He is the man in the Air Force who admitted being a homosexual, and fought being forced out. He said that he is simply attracted to the male sex — and is not after little kids or performing anti-social activities in men's rooms.

"He said he repressed his feelings for men for years. Now he is being open and honest about it. The Air Force discharged him because of 'moral reason.'

"He said — and I think he has a good point — why should he not be treated as a human being, instead of as some stereotype. And, also, if the armed services were so morality conscious, why do they issue condoms to servicemen, birth controls to Wacs, and provide prostitutes for the troops?"

Bleier, the recipient of both the Purple Heart, awarded for being wounded in action, and the Bronze Star, awarded for heroic achievement, recalls lying in a Vietnam rice paddy, firing grenades at the enemy while helping four comrades and himself escape.

"Lying there, wounded, not knowing if I'd ever walk or live, I prayed. I had recently read a book about a guy in wartime who tells God, 'If you get me out of this mess, I'll become a priest and spread your word.'

"Now, I said, 'Well, I really can't promise You anything. I've got to be honest. I'm asking for Your help. And if I get out of this situation, I'll never complain again. That's the best I can do.' He must have taken me up on the deal."

Bleier believes that his outlook on life from then on changed.

He said he no longer has patience with people who condemn those outside the norm. "I mean, as long as someone isn't jeopardizing another person, why condemn him?" said Bleier.

"But too often people like to stereotype. It's comfortable. They don't have to think, don't have to be responsible for their actions.

"You know, I admire a guy who is true to himself. Even though Muhammad Ali took a different course of action from myself about the war, I commend him for taking a stand.

"Why should everyone be like us? When you think about it, people from Einstein to E. J. Simpson are outside the norm, too."

St. Zachary school wins No. 1 award

St. Zachary Elementary School of Des Plaines is the 1975 State Champion Award winner, the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports announced this week. The State Champion Award goes to the school in each state which has the highest percentage of students qualifying for the Presidential Physical Fitness Award.

The State Champion Award school recieves a certificate of commendation and a plaque for display in its trophy case. Each Presidential Award winner in the school is presented a T-shirt with the State Champion Award emblem on the front. By recognizing achievement, the award program is designed to encourage physical fitness testing in the schools.

More than 12 million boys and girls, ages 10 to 17, attempted to win the Presidential Physical Fitness Award during the 1974-75 school year, and nearly 500,000 of them succeeded. The winners scored at or above the 85th percentile on each of the six items of the Youth Fitness Test devised by the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. (National norms are established by testing a representative sample of 10,000 boys and girls.)

To win the Presidential Award, a 14-year-old boy must, among other things, do 10 pullups in one minute, sprint 50 yards in 6.6 seconds, and run 600 yards in one minute, 46 seconds. Girls' standards are comparable to those for boys through age 12, but they diverge sharply thereafter.

Spiders breathe through stomach

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Carla Rhone, 11, of Williamsport, Pa., for her question:
DO SPIDERS HAVE NOSES?

A busy spider must be able to dodge her enemies and also catch enough flighty flies to fill her fat tummy. Obviously she must know exactly what's going on in the neighborhood. Chances are, she has eyes in the top of her head. When an insect gets trapped in her web, she feels vibrations from the silken threads. And, though she has no human-type nose, she also has a keen sense of smell.

A spider breathes through a slit in her fat round tummy. The air seeps in, wanders through a network of tubes and brings oxygen to the cells inside her body. Used air seeps out through the same doorway. This sort of nose is handy for breathing, but it is no use for sniffing.

Actually, the spider can smell with many parts of her body. Here and there, under the skin, she has miniwads of special cells that can sense odors and maybe also flavors. These are connected to superfine nerves that flash messages to her brain.

Most of her smelling is done by a pair of sensitive feelers, one on each side of her amazing mouth. They are called pedipalps and they look like small legs, each with six joints. The hairs and sensitive cells in her pedipalps detect smells and most likely flavors in her food and in anything else she touches. She has more of these tiny sense organs in her spidery legs and other parts of her body.

There are about 30,000 different spiders and each type has her own way of life. All of them have breathing slits in their abdomens and all of them smell through similar sensory cells. But some have keener eyesight than others and some are totally blind. Some have two tiny eyes, some have four and some have eight — on top of the head.

All spiders are very sensitive to trembling vibrations, especially those that trap their victims in silken webs. When the orb spider finishes her splendid rough web, she goes off and waits in a nearby corner. One or two of her eight legs rest lightly on several of the long threads of her web.

When a fly zooms into her sticky net, naturally he struggles to get free. But this only makes the tangle worse. It also jogs and vibrates all the silken threads. The waiting spider feels the vibrations and comes striding out to dinner — taking care to step only on the nonsticky threads.

The clever spider can sense strong and weak vibrations. When the vibrations are very weak, she decides that the captive is too small for dinner — and usually ignores him. When the vibrations are very strong, she knows the victim is large and may be dangerous. She may cower in her corner or cut him free to save her web. This goes to show that the spider is very well informed about what goes on around her.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Darrin Viley, 9, of St. Louis, Mo., for his question:
CAN A MONGOOSE BE KILLED BY A SNAKE BITE?

The mongoose is a fierce little fighter and one of his mortal enemies is the deadly cobra. When he gets ready for battle, he fluffs up his fur so that he looks much bigger than he really is. The big snake rears up and strikes — but almost always he fails to dig in his deadly fangs. He may grab a mouthful of that fluffed-up fur, or more likely the mongoose is quick enough to jump out of the way.

Sometimes the cobra really jabs the mongoose with his deadly poison. The snake vernom may make the mongoose sick or even kill him. But as a rule it does not harm him as much as it does other animals. Sometimes a mongoose kills and eats a cobra. If he swallows the fangs, the poison gets into his blood and this most likely him. But as a rule, the mongoose kills the snake and gets away free.

The clever spider can sense strong and weak vibrations. When the vibrations are very weak, she decides that the captive is too small for dinner — and usually ignores him. When the vibrations are very strong, she knows the victim is large and may be dangerous. She may cower in her corner or cut him free to save her web. This goes to show that the spider is very well informed about what goes on around her.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Darrin Viley, 9, of St. Louis, Mo., for his question:

CAN A MONGOOSE BE KILLED BY A SNAKE BITE?

The mongoose is a fierce little fighter and one of his mortal enemies is the deadly cobra. When he gets ready for battle, he fluffs up his fur so that he looks much bigger than he really is. The big snake rears up and strikes — but almost always he fails to dig in his deadly fangs. He may grab a mouthful of that fluffed-up fur, or more likely the mongoose is quick enough to jump out of the way.

Sometimes the cobra really jabs the mongoose with his deadly poison. The snake vernom may make the mongoose sick or even kill him. But as a rule it does not harm him as much as it does other animals. Sometimes a mongoose kills and eats a cobra. If he swallows the fangs, the poison gets into his blood and this most likely him. But as a rule, the mongoose kills the snake and gets away free.

"The Mad Magician"

Talented troupe rescues BOB's mediocre 'Carnival'

Mid-week review

by PAT ADAM

Sometimes talented performers can rescue an otherwise mediocre show and transform it into a highly entertaining evening.

That's the case with Best-Off-Broadway's production, "Carnival," which opened last weekend and will play again this weekend at Wheeling High School. An enthusiastic BOB cast brings life to the musical that offers "Love Makes the World Go Round" as the only tune worth remembering and has a less than exciting story line.

The cast is aided and abetted in the rescue by a motley quartet of personable puppets (who, by the way, are hanging around after the show closes and will be available for school performances).

"CARNIVAL'S" PLOT has an orphaned girl joining up with a third rate carnival and becoming enamoured of its magician, who's really a cad. In turn, though he fails to recognize it, the crippled and embittered puppeteer has fallen in love with the starry-eyed girl. Jealous of the magician, he bullies her and nearly drives her away from the carnival before the pair are happily reconciled.

Margaret Downham brings an excellent trained voice and a convincing innocent demeanor to her role as the orphaned Lili, who finally finds her place in the carnival helping the puppet show become its star attraction.

As Paul Berthalet, the crippled puppeteer, Art Bobis has some of the show's most demanding solos, which he handles ably. But he could relax his stance a bit. He's supposed to have only a stiff leg, not his entire body. Art also is both a voice and one puppeteer in the puppet show.

Frank Gets is cast as the caddish Marco the magician and Karen Mason as his partner-lover, Rosalie. Frank gives his usual excellent performance, and together with Vince Bonata, Chuck Sears, Steve Davids and Jerry Armstrong as roustabouts, provides one of the show's most memorable moments in "A Sword and a Rose and a Cape." The number calls for some tricky legwork, and the roustabouts are very good at it.

KAREN MASON puts her inimitable stamp on the character of Rosalie. Blessed with an inborn sense of comedy, she has strong vocal cords as well. She's at her best especially in "Humming" with Schlegel, the carnival owner, played by Sam Ursetto.

Also outstanding is John Van de Merkt as Jacquot, Paul's puppeteer partner. He and the carnival people stir things up with some lively dancing and gymnastics in the rousing "Grand Imperial Cirque de Paris," in which they all seem to have a very merry time.

John also does voices and puppetry for some of the puppets.

Paul Caldarola appears in two roles, as Grobert, the trinket wagon operator, and as Dr. Glass, who woos Rosalie. In lesser roles are Lynda Sears as the snake charmer, Princess Olga, Ruth Vos and Susan Johnson as the "Siamese" twins, and Sarah Davis as Greta.

Richard Tyler directed the production, John Van Hook wields the orchestra baton, and Daniel Yurgaitis did the choreography. Additional performances are at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and also Sunday afternoon. Information, 392-4875.

And to make a date with the puppets, Pat Cotsakis may be contacted at 397-4007.

Forcing bid jams opponents in this play

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The weak two bid is not a panacea for all bidding ills. Most experts use it but those who do, don't feel that it is really important.

One advantage is that on occasion it gets the opponents too high.

West has a weak sort of weak two bid, but it does meet the requirements. Eight high-card points and a playable six-card suit. North has a fine double and East keeps up the attack by a jump to four hearts.

South doesn't really want to bid four spades. On the other hand, it would be sheer cowardice to pass so he bids it.

North really should pass, but he likes his hand and suspects skullduggery by the opposition. He Blackwoods his way to six.

There is no play for six. South has to lose a club and the ace of diamonds and will probably lose a trick to the queen of trumps.

Of course, North and South might get to that same slam after a pass by West. North would open one diamond; South would respond one spade and North might head for the stratosphere.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

"The Mad Magician"

Talented troupe rescues BOB's mediocre 'Carnival'

Mid-week review

by PAT ADAM

Sometimes talented performers can rescue an otherwise mediocre show and transform it into a highly entertaining evening.

That's the case with Best-Off-Broadway's production, "Carnival," which opened last weekend and will play again this weekend at Wheeling High School. An enthusiastic BOB cast brings life to the musical that offers "Love Makes the World Go Round" as the only tune worth remembering and has a less than exciting story line.

The cast is aided and abetted in the rescue by a motley quartet of personable puppets (who, by the way, are hanging around after the show closes and will be available for school performances).

"CARNIVAL'S" PLOT has an orphaned girl joining up with a third rate carnival and becoming enamoured of its magician, who's really a cad. In turn, though he fails to recognize it, the crippled and embittered puppeteer has fallen in love with the starry-eyed girl. Jealous of the magician, he bullies her and nearly drives her away from the carnival before the pair are happily reconciled.

Margaret Downham brings an excellent trained voice and a convincing innocent demeanor to her role as the orphaned Lili, who finally finds her place in the carnival helping the puppet show become its star attraction.

As Paul Berthalet, the crippled puppeteer, Art Bobis has some of the show's most demanding solos, which he handles ably. But he could relax his stance a bit. He's supposed to have only a stiff leg, not his entire body. Art also is both a voice and one puppeteer in the puppet show.

Frank Gets is cast as the caddish Marco the magician and Karen Mason as his partner-lover, Rosalie. Frank gives his usual excellent performance, and together with Vince Bonata, Chuck Sears, Steve Davids and Jerry Armstrong as roustabouts, provides one of the show's most memorable moments in "A Sword and a Rose and a Cape." The number calls for some tricky legwork, and the roustabouts are very good at it.

KAREN MASON puts her inimitable stamp on the character of Rosalie. Blessed with an inborn sense of comedy, she has strong vocal cords as well. She's at her best especially in "Humming" with Schlegel, the carnival owner, played by Sam Ursetto.

Also outstanding is John Van de Merkt as Jacquot, Paul's puppeteer partner. He and the carnival people stir things up with some lively dancing and gymnastics in the rousing "Grand Imperial Cirque de Paris," in which they all seem to have a very merry time.

John also does voices and puppetry for some of the puppets.

Paul Caldarola appears in two roles, as Grobert, the trinket wagon operator, and as Dr. Glass, who woos Rosalie. In lesser roles are Lynda Sears as the snake charmer, Princess Olga, Ruth Vos and Susan Johnson as the "Siamese" twins, and Sarah Davis as Greta.

Richard Tyler directed the production, John Van Hook wields the orchestra baton, and Daniel Yurgaitis did the choreography. Additional performances are at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and also Sunday afternoon. Information, 392-4875.

And to make a date with the puppets, Pat Cotsakis may be contacted at 397-4007.

Forcing bid jams opponents in this play

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The weak two bid is not a panacea for all bidding ills. Most experts use it but those who do, don't feel that it is really important.

One advantage is that on occasion it gets the opponents too high.

West has a weak sort of weak two bid, but it does meet the requirements. Eight high-card points and a playable six-card suit. North has a fine double and East keeps up the attack by a jump to four hearts.

South doesn't really want to bid four spades. On the other hand, it would be sheer cowardice to pass so he bids it.

North really should pass, but he likes his hand and suspects skullduggery by the opposition. He Blackwoods his way to six.

There is no play for six. South has to lose a club and the ace of diamonds and will probably lose a trick to the queen of trumps.

Of course, North and South might get to that same slam after a pass by West. North would open one diamond; South would respond one spade and North might head for the stratosphere.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Student suspension study urged

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — State School Supt. Joseph Cronin is asking the state Board of Education to authorize an investigation of nine Illinois school districts which suspend an unusually high number of students, especially blacks.

Cronin, in a request to be presented at a board meeting Thursday, asked that the nine districts be investigated to see if they are violating state rules, and "to determine if racial discrimination is a basis for suspension."

The nine high school districts are Joliet Township 204; Bloom Township 206; Proviso Township 209; Zion-Benton Township 126; North Chicago Community 123; Thornton Township 205; Bremen Community 228; Worth Community 218 and Lockport Township 205.

CRONIN REQUESTED the investigation as a result of a national report released earlier this fall. It showed Illinois in 1972-73 suspended more black youngsters than any other state, and that eight Illinois districts were among the nation's top 20 in the percentage of black students suspended at least once.

The report was issued by a group called the Children's Defense fund using information from the U.S. Office of Civil Rights for the 1972-73 school year.

It indicated Joliet that year suspended 63.9 per cent of its black students at least once — the highest rate in the nation.

Leory Hipkins, assistant superintendent for Joliet Dist. 204, said school officials have been going over their records since the report was issued.

He said district officials do not know how the percentages were determined, and that could make a difference. If, for example, school districts including grades kindergarten through high school were compared to districts including only grades 9-12, the latter would end up with much higher percentages since few elementary school children are suspended anywhere, he said.

HIPKINS SAID there were no unusual racial incidents or student fights during the 1972-73 school year that would account for the high number of suspensions.

The national study indicated Proviso suspended 53.1 per cent of its black students during the 1972-73 school year; Bloom 49.6 per cent; Zion-Benton 47.2 per cent; Worth 40.4 per cent; Thornton 40.1 per cent; North Chicago 38 per cent and Bremen 34.8 per cent.

In all those districts except Bremen, the study said, the rate of suspension for blacks was at least 24.4 per cent above the rate for whites.

8 on Daley list of court candidates

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bar Assn. said Monday Mayor Richard J. Daley has submitted to it names of eight men as potential Illinois Supreme Court candidates and promised only those approved by the bar will be slated by the Democratic party.

The names submitted included that of Daley's longtime frend Joseph Power, chief judge of the Cook County Criminal Court, but did not include state Senate President Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, long rumored to be in the running.

The other seven names submitted by Daley were Appellate Justices Henry W. Dieringer, Seymour Simon, Robert J. Downing, and John J. Sullivan; attorney James A. Dooley, and Circuit Court Judges Marvin E. Aspen and Walter P. Dahl.

Cook County Republicans submitted three names to the bar for screening — former state Rep. Lawrence Pusateri, now head of the Illinois State Bar Assn.; attorney Elroy Sanquist Jr., and Circuit Court Judge Reginald Holzer.

CHICAGO BAR Assn. President John Menk told a news conference the GOP also had pledged not to slate anyone not approved by the bar.

There will be two vacancies on the Illinois Supreme Court from Cook County next year because Justices Walter Schaefer and Thomas Kluczynski have reached mandatory retirement age.

Both Democrats and Republicans will slate candidates for the va- and other persons may run without party slating. The justices will be chosen in the general election next November.

RON TORAK may look like a tree surgeon, but he really is just decorating trees with tiny Christmas lights along Chicago's Michigan Avenue. There are only 44 days till Christmas.

Congressional bust-up in year or two?

Oil giants breakup predicted

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colorado, predicted Monday Congress will vote within one year — or two at most — to break up the nation's oil giants into smaller, more competitive companies.

Oil industry leaders, shaken by the degree of support already shown for such a breakup, said they face no more serious threat. They called for a massive campaign to tell Congress and the public their side of the story and blunt growing hostility toward their industry.

"I THINK IT will be a very substantial battle," Hart said, when told of industry's plans.

Hart's prediction came during a news conference at the annual meeting of the Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America, meeting in Chicago.

The independents met at a hotel just one block away from where the big oil companies were holding the annual convention of the American Petroleum Institute.

It was a surprise when 45 senators recently voted in favor of an amendment that would have kept a single firm from producing oil, transporting it, refining it and selling the refined products, Hart said.

He said the size of that vote reflected views from "the folks back home" that major oil companies are too big, a view he said is sure to win additional support in the months ahead.

A new attempt to break up the major companies should reach the floor of Congress some time this spring, Hart said.

"I THINK IT will pass in the next year, or in two at the outside," he said.

At the API convention, Charles Spahr, chairman of the organization, and also chairman of Standard Oil of Ohio, said he too was startled by the strength of the recent Senate vote.

Spahr said the threat that Congress might break up the majors or make them get out of other energy fields such as coal is "without exception our greatest concern."

API president Frank Ikard warned oilmen to expect the worst from an election year Congress making energy policy decisions on political grounds.

County open only to acutely ill

Certain patient care services in Cook County Hospital's emergency room have been halted because of a 15-day-old strike by some 450 interns and resident doctors, hospital director William J. Silverman said Monday.

"Effective immediately the adult and pediatric emergency rooms will remain open only for the treatment of acutely ill patients," Silverman said.

"Physicians in the emergency rooms will determine if patients must be admitted to the hospital, or if it will be necessary to make arrangements for some of these patients to be transferred to other hospitals."

Silverman said the burns center would remain open.

The strike, by members of the hospital's Housestaff Association, showed no sign of an impending settlement with federal mediation scheduled to resume. It is the longest doctors' strike in the nation's history.

Illinois briefs

Jury nixes indictments

A Cook County grand jury which investigated charges that Chicago police illegally infiltrated six community organizations has declined to return any indictments in the case, State's Attorney Bernard Carey said Monday.

But the grand jury, in a 44-page report, said it found many instances of illegal activities by the police intelligence division and concluded the spy activities had been largely a waste of time and money, Carey told a news conference.

"The testimony and documents examined by the grand jury revealed repeated instances of wrongdoing that could have provided the basis for indictments," he said. "However, the grand jury concluded that the return of indictments would not serve the best interests of our community."

Carey said the grand jury reached that decision because it believed many persons would escape indictment since the statute of limitations on their activities had run out, or because "physical evidence necessary to prove the cases had been destroyed."

Washburn seeking post

Illinois House Republican leader James Washburn Monday announced he is running for Congress in the 15th Congressional District. Washburn, now in his fifth consecutive House term, served as chairman of the House Appropriations committee before being chosen as his party's floor leader last January. He indicated he will base his campaign on preference for "conservative fiscal policies that spend tax dollars carefully and cautiously for services benefiting people.

Corn, soybean record set

Illinois set a new state record on both the total amount of corn and soybeans produced this year and the yield per acre in the two crops, according to estimates released Monday by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The USDA figures show Illinois is the nation's leading producer of corn and soybeans this year — 1.23 billion bushels of corn and 294,840,000 bushels of soybeans.

The total corn crop surpasses a 1967 state record of 1.1 billion bushels, and the per-acre yield on corn is 116 bushels, compared to a previous record of 110 bushels set in Illinois in 1972.

Rock Island rule delayed

A federal judge Monday postponed a ruling on whether the Rock Island Railroad could issue $19 million worth of certificates in an effort to maintain operations. U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr postponed the ruling until at least later this week.

The Department of Transportation said on Oct. 29 that it intended to back up trustee certificates with a federally guaranteed $19 million loan. However, the loan could not go into effect before Nov. 13 and then only if approved by Judge McGarr.

Jobless benefit claimants down

The number of persons claiming unemployment benefits under Illinois' regular compensation program dropped 2.8 per cent the week ending Nov. 1 compared to the previous week, the state Department of Labor said Monday.

Department Director Donald Johnson said 208,269 persons claimed regular benefits. The figure included 17,743 persons making claims for the first time, a decline of 2.9 per cent from the previous week.

A total of 111,971 persons claimed unemployment benefits under special or extended state and federal programs in Illinois the week ending Nov. 1. That made a total of 313,240 persons receiving unemployment compensation under various programs in Illinois.

Student suspension study urged

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — State School Supt. Joseph Cronin is asking the state Board of Education to authorize an investigation of nine Illinois school districts which suspend an unusually high number of students, especially blacks.

Cronin, in a request to be presented at a board meeting Thursday, asked that the nine districts be investigated to see if they are violating state rules, and "to determine if racial discrimination is a basis for suspension."

The nine high school districts are Joliet Township 204; Bloom Township 206; Proviso Township 209; Zion-Benton Township 126; North Chicago Community 123; Thornton Township 205; Bremen Community 228; Worth Community 218 and Lockport Township 205.

CRONIN REQUESTED the investigation as a result of a national report released earlier this fall. It showed Illinois in 1972-73 suspended more black youngsters than any other state, and that eight Illinois districts were among the nation's top 20 in the percentage of black students suspended at least once.

The report was issued by a group called the Children's Defense fund using information from the U.S. Office of Civil Rights for the 1972-73 school year.

It indicated Joliet that year suspended 63.9 per cent of its black students at least once — the highest rate in the nation.

Leory Hipkins, assistant superintendent for Joliet Dist. 204, said school officials have been going over their records since the report was issued.

He said district officials do not know how the percentages were determined, and that could make a difference. If, for example, school districts including grades kindergarten through high school were compared to districts including only grades 9-12, the latter would end up with much higher percentages since few elementary school children are suspended anywhere, he said.

HIPKINS SAID there were no unusual racial incidents or student fights during the 1972-73 school year that would account for the high number of suspensions.

The national study indicated Proviso suspended 53.1 per cent of its black students during the 1972-73 school year; Bloom 49.6 per cent; Zion-Benton 47.2 per cent; Worth 40.4 per cent; Thornton 40.1 per cent; North Chicago 38 per cent and Bremen 34.8 per cent.

In all those districts except Bremen, the study said, the rate of suspension for blacks was at least 24.4 per cent above the rate for whites.

8 on Daley list of court candidates

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bar Assn. said Monday Mayor Richard J. Daley has submitted to it names of eight men as potential Illinois Supreme Court candidates and promised only those approved by the bar will be slated by the Democratic party.

The names submitted included that of Daley's longtime frend Joseph Power, chief judge of the Cook County Criminal Court, but did not include state Senate President Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, long rumored to be in the running.

The other seven names submitted by Daley were Appellate Justices Henry W. Dieringer, Seymour Simon, Robert J. Downing, and John J. Sullivan; attorney James A. Dooley, and Circuit Court Judges Marvin E. Aspen and Walter P. Dahl.

Cook County Republicans submitted three names to the bar for screening — former state Rep. Lawrence Pusateri, now head of the Illinois State Bar Assn.; attorney Elroy Sanquist Jr., and Circuit Court Judge Reginald Holzer.

CHICAGO BAR Assn. President John Menk told a news conference the GOP also had pledged not to slate anyone not approved by the bar.

There will be two vacancies on the Illinois Supreme Court from Cook County next year because Justices Walter Schaefer and Thomas Kluczynski have reached mandatory retirement age.

Both Democrats and Republicans will slate candidates for the va- and other persons may run without party slating. The justices will be chosen in the general election next November.

RON TORAK may look like a tree surgeon, but he really is just decorating trees with tiny Christmas lights along Chicago's Michigan Avenue. There are only 44 days till Christmas.

Congressional bust-up in year or two?

Oil giants breakup predicted

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colorado, predicted Monday Congress will vote within one year — or two at most — to break up the nation's oil giants into smaller, more competitive companies.

Oil industry leaders, shaken by the degree of support already shown for such a breakup, said they face no more serious threat. They called for a massive campaign to tell Congress and the public their side of the story and blunt growing hostility toward their industry.

"I THINK IT will be a very substantial battle," Hart said, when told of industry's plans.

Hart's prediction came during a news conference at the annual meeting of the Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America, meeting in Chicago.

The independents met at a hotel just one block away from where the big oil companies were holding the annual convention of the American Petroleum Institute.

It was a surprise when 45 senators recently voted in favor of an amendment that would have kept a single firm from producing oil, transporting it, refining it and selling the refined products, Hart said.

He said the size of that vote reflected views from "the folks back home" that major oil companies are too big, a view he said is sure to win additional support in the months ahead.

A new attempt to break up the major companies should reach the floor of Congress some time this spring, Hart said.

"I THINK IT will pass in the next year, or in two at the outside," he said.

At the API convention, Charles Spahr, chairman of the organization, and also chairman of Standard Oil of Ohio, said he too was startled by the strength of the recent Senate vote.

Spahr said the threat that Congress might break up the majors or make them get out of other energy fields such as coal is "without exception our greatest concern."

API president Frank Ikard warned oilmen to expect the worst from an election year Congress making energy policy decisions on political grounds.

County open only to acutely ill

Certain patient care services in Cook County Hospital's emergency room have been halted because of a 15-day-old strike by some 450 interns and resident doctors, hospital director William J. Silverman said Monday.

"Effective immediately the adult and pediatric emergency rooms will remain open only for the treatment of acutely ill patients," Silverman said.

"Physicians in the emergency rooms will determine if patients must be admitted to the hospital, or if it will be necessary to make arrangements for some of these patients to be transferred to other hospitals."

Silverman said the burns center would remain open.

The strike, by members of the hospital's Housestaff Association, showed no sign of an impending settlement with federal mediation scheduled to resume. It is the longest doctors' strike in the nation's history.

Illinois briefs

Jury nixes indictments

A Cook County grand jury which investigated charges that Chicago police illegally infiltrated six community organizations has declined to return any indictments in the case, State's Attorney Bernard Carey said Monday.

But the grand jury, in a 44-page report, said it found many instances of illegal activities by the police intelligence division and concluded the spy activities had been largely a waste of time and money, Carey told a news conference.

"The testimony and documents examined by the grand jury revealed repeated instances of wrongdoing that could have provided the basis for indictments," he said. "However, the grand jury concluded that the return of indictments would not serve the best interests of our community."

Carey said the grand jury reached that decision because it believed many persons would escape indictment since the statute of limitations on their activities had run out, or because "physical evidence necessary to prove the cases had been destroyed."

Washburn seeking post

Illinois House Republican leader James Washburn Monday announced he is running for Congress in the 15th Congressional District. Washburn, now in his fifth consecutive House term, served as chairman of the House Appropriations committee before being chosen as his party's floor leader last January. He indicated he will base his campaign on preference for "conservative fiscal policies that spend tax dollars carefully and cautiously for services benefiting people.

Corn, soybean record set

Illinois set a new state record on both the total amount of corn and soybeans produced this year and the yield per acre in the two crops, according to estimates released Monday by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The USDA figures show Illinois is the nation's leading producer of corn and soybeans this year — 1.23 billion bushels of corn and 294,840,000 bushels of soybeans.

The total corn crop surpasses a 1967 state record of 1.1 billion bushels, and the per-acre yield on corn is 116 bushels, compared to a previous record of 110 bushels set in Illinois in 1972.

Rock Island rule delayed

A federal judge Monday postponed a ruling on whether the Rock Island Railroad could issue $19 million worth of certificates in an effort to maintain operations. U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr postponed the ruling until at least later this week.

The Department of Transportation said on Oct. 29 that it intended to back up trustee certificates with a federally guaranteed $19 million loan. However, the loan could not go into effect before Nov. 13 and then only if approved by Judge McGarr.

Jobless benefit claimants down

The number of persons claiming unemployment benefits under Illinois' regular compensation program dropped 2.8 per cent the week ending Nov. 1 compared to the previous week, the state Department of Labor said Monday.

Department Director Donald Johnson said 208,269 persons claimed regular benefits. The figure included 17,743 persons making claims for the first time, a decline of 2.9 per cent from the previous week.

A total of 111,971 persons claimed unemployment benefits under special or extended state and federal programs in Illinois the week ending Nov. 1. That made a total of 313,240 persons receiving unemployment compensation under various programs in Illinois.
